The TULV conference at the north London offices of Mr Clive Jenkins's union, the from polling stations covering a Association of Scientific, Tech-Association of Scientific, Technical and Managerial staffs, was called originally to find ways of bailing Labour out of its latest and most critical financial crisis, and those present agreed to cooperate in restoring the cash fortunes of the party. But the union politicians also agreed to give their support to the new policy initiative aimed at taking Labour's message out of the "intellectual hot-house" of party headquarters and back to the voters in time for local authority and European parlia-mentary elections next year. Polling scenes, page 5 | The key intention behind the party, the national executive and the unions, is to present a anited front on policy to avoid the damaging public splits which exacerbated Labour's poor showing at the polls. The terms of reference of the 16-member committee are:

• to oversee the detailed articulation of party policy within the framework agreed by the conference, and to ensure it is presented in as united, professional, imaginative and popular a way as possible;

to conduct centrallydirected nationwide campaig to use professional skills and develop media ideas for political education and to involve party members or review priorities, management and staffing of the party's press, publicity, education and campaigning organizations to increase their

The last retreat of Arafat's crumbling army

Mr Yassir Arafat's crumbling gnerrilla army lost one of the only two Palestinian camps still in its hands and began its last retreat back into the streets of Tripoli yesterday under a constant bombardment of shelfire and a shroud of black smoke four miles high from the encircled city's burning oil

Palestinians still loyal to Mr Arafat were dragging their beavy artillery into a banana grove in the northern suburbs to form a new perimeter front line and firing mortars from the Tripoli seafront as the Palestine Liberation Organization forces, seeking the destruction of the man who is still nominally their leader, joined Syrian troops in an indiscriminate attack on Mr Arafat's last camp at Baddawi.

As if unable to grasp the full consequences of the Palestinian civil war that is now reaching its climax, Mr Arafat himself took an almost pragmatic view of the catastrophe that is now likely to overwhelm his men.

'I have no other choice but to hold out," he said yesterday.

The human cost of his resilience was horrifyingly revealed inside Tripoli when a crowd of Palestinian men and women - some of them stunned into silence, others breading down in grief - surrounded a refrigerted steel container lorry that had been parked in front of the Islamic Hospital.

The lorry bore the insignia of a number of young men wearing

Angry Israelis press for partition of Lebanon

From Christopher Walker, Jerusalem

All bridges across the Awali River in Southern Lebanon remained blocked last night by heavily-armed Israeli soldiers, as the Government of Mr Yitzhak Shamir came under pressure to make the closure permanent, and to enforce other security measures including the razing of orchards which provide cover for ambushes.

The Tyre suicide bomb attack fast Friday, in which 60 people died, including 28 Israelis, has left the country in bitter mood, with many voicing support for the policy of revenge air strikes to rigid control. ordered by the Government on targets east of Beirut, Ministers have make plain that similar retaliation will follow any further attacks.

Both Dr Joseph Burg, the Interior Minister, and Mr Yuvai Neleman, the Science Minister, have voiced support for the permanent sealing off of southern Lebanon, a move both Mr Shamir and his Desence Minister, Mr Moshe Arens, are believed to oppose.

The closure of the Awali bridges was imposed last Friday, in angry response to the Tyre bombing. It has effectively partitioned the country, causing anger and hardship among the Lebanese population.

> Although the Israeli Cabinet yesterday devoted most of its ession to the Tyre disaster, a decision about the future of free passage across the Awali was postponed until later this week. A number of contingencies are being reviewed by the Defence Ministry short of complete closure. One plan would be to prevent private Arab vehicles travelling across the Awali line, and to subject all Lebanese commercial transport

During a weekend visit to the Awali bridge I found Israeli tank cannon and heavy belted machine guns covering any Arab attempt to break the blockade. The closure was accompanied by the most intensive security operation

Union officials predicted last night that the campaign will run for many months, perhaps even years, and it is the first time since the strikes were launched nearly two months ago that the TUC has agreed to give full backing to the campaign.

Delegates to the POEU's enference in Blackpool will today receive a copy of a letter sent by Mr Len Murray, general secretary of the TUC, to all unions urging their support for the strikes through interest-free loans, or donations to the union, whose action is costing more than £300,000 a week to finance. All POEU members are being asked to pay a levy of £1 per week to help with the cost of the action, but Mr Bryan Stanley, general secretary of the union, said last night that the appeal to other unions by the TUC was a contingency measure in case BT stepped up disciplinary action, which is likely after the conference ends.

About 50 POEU members are faced with dismissal by BT for failing to work normally, but the management said last week that it would hold off processing their dismissals until after the conference, in the hope that delegates would vote for an end to the action. Mr Stanley claimed the conference this week would give "overwhelming" backing to the continuance of the action.

making that clear to BT next week. If dismissals take place, it will mean that industrial relations in BT will be radically and irrevocably changed for as far as can be seen in the future, and make it a much more unattractive prospect for sale."

It is thought that the union's own levy on members is falling short of the union's expenditure on the campaign by as much as £200,000, and there will be emergency motions tabled for the conference calling for an increase in the levy because it is feared that the TUC appeal will not meet with a wide response.

. There will also be moves made by militants for the action to be stepped up, but Mr Stanley predicted that the present policy of allowing the wages to over 2,400 telephone He said: "If any of our executive to select targets for engineers who are either on members are dismissed there strikes would be confirmed.

Unions struggling in Peers face farmland reform plea

By John Young Agriculture Correspondent

The Agricultural Holdings Bill, described as possibly the last chance this century to unionisation, in companies like arrest the decline in farm tenancies, has a second reading very different from traditional in the Lords tomorrow.

The Bill fulfils a long-standing commitment by the Conservative Party to legislate on the basis of a joint "package" put forward by the National Farmers' Union and the Country Landowners Association.

But the package has been Centrefile, whose employees are criticized as short-sighted and self-serving. The Labour Party Insurance and Finance Union. remains vigorously opposed to the proposal to end security of This union presence can largely be explained because the company is a subsidiary of the National Westminster Bank tenure on future lettings.

From across the political spectrum the Lords are being urged to adopt a wide range of amendments, as they did in the case of the Wildlife and Countryside Act, which would broaden its scope and purpose.

Fewer than 40 per cent of farmland is tenanted, compared with more than 90 per cent before the First World War. managers to run their farms. The complative result had been to dry up the supply of farms to let, to the despair of young men and women denied the chance to get a foot on the first rung of the farming ladder. The NFU/CLA answer, which the Bill reflects, is to abolish the three generation security of tenure on new lettings, although existing tenancies would not be affected.

There is a widely held view, expressed in letters to The imes, that the Bill as it stands does not go far enough. While it may make life easier for landowners, it is said, it will do nothing to improve the supply of farmland to let.

The Tenant Farmers' As sociation wants more flexible provisions for retirement, so that tenants will not be forced to continue into old age and ill health to prevent families being evicted.

Thatcher scores less for skill

By Anthony Bevins The Prime Minister's split with the United States over the invasion of Grenada appears to have contributed to a slump in her popularity ratings.

A Market and Opinion Research International poll, carried out for The Sunday Times, shows that Mrs Margarer Thatcher's score for skill in a crisis has dropped from 63 per cent to 38 per cent since the June general election. Her rating for understanding world problems has slipped from 47 per cent to 28 per cent. Nevertheless, the Conservatives retain a strong lead over Labour while the Labour Party, under its new leader, makes advances at the expense of the Liberal-Social Democratic Alliance. In a poll of 959 voters in 48 constituencies last Monday and Tuesday, 43 per cent backed the abour; and 20 per cent Alliance. The election gave the Tories 43 per cent; Labour 28 per cent; and the Alliance 26 per Local objectors say that the interference from the six transmitters, each with a power of 300,000 watts, would create immense electrical difficulties over a wide area, including most of Stratford itself.

The corporation, acting as agents for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, says the station it proposes to build at Bearley, north of Stratford, will improve reception in Eastern Europe, the Middle and Far East, Africa and North and South America.

It already has 51 transmitters in Britain handling its external service broadcasting. About three years ago it proposed a similar station near Yeovilton, Somerset, but the plan was rejected after Ministry of Defence objections that it would cause interference with the local naval airfield.

Israeli troops througout southern Lebanon have spent a frenetic weekend trying to make their scores of outposts secure from Arab suicide bombs like the one which killed 60 people in Tyre on Friday and severely dented the morale of the largest army in the Middle East.

Dr Kohl pointed out that for the International Develop-caused anxiety both to other Democrats and to the Republicans, and the answers to the questions it poses will do much to determine who is the next occupant of the White House. It will not be Mr Jackson. The United States is not ready for a black President. He stands no chance of being elected or even of being the Democratic nominee. He is a disturbing factor, not a potential winner.

The person who will suffer the most immediate disturb-ance is Mr Walter Mondale The Mondale campaign has made considerable progress in recent months. There is - or at least was until Mr Jackson made his announcement last Thursday - a greater air of confidence in his camp than when I was last here in June. His superior organization has been telling, and he has been drawing away from his only serious rival for the Democratic momination, Senator John

But as the more liberal candidate of the two. Mr Mondale appeals more than Mr Glenn to blak voters. So he will correspondingly be hurt the more if a significant proportion of the black electorate supports a black candidate in key primaries.

This could be critical to Mr Mondale's chances in a number of southern states and possibly in such northern ones as Illinois where blacks have already had a major political impact. Aiready there are black mayors of such cities, north and south, as Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Atlanta and New

Mr Jackson could damage Mr Mondale without himself winning a single primary. He could let Mr Glenn in to take a number of critical early primaries simply by drawing of enought black votes that would otherwise have gone to Mr Mondale.

So the first impact of the Jackson candidacy is to raise a new question mark over who will be the Democratic nomi-nee. Even if Mr Mondale manages to beat off this threat, that will not be the end of Mr on next Year's election

Whoever is the Democratic candidate will need to get large number's of black voters to the polls in the presidential elec-tion itself next November. Mr Jackson's candidacy is ex-pected to be helpful to the Democrats in persuading more blacks to register early in the year so as to be able to vote for a black candidate in the

Unless a person has taken the trouble to register some time beforehand, it is impossible to vote in an American election; and a smaller proportion of blacks are registered than whites.

In a number of states, especially in the south, a larger turn-out of black voters could swing the result in favour of the Democrats, so a voter regis-tration drive for blacks at the beginning of the year could be very beneficial to the party.

But will the blacks who register in the spring turn out in the autumn to vote for a white Democrat once the black candidate has been defeated? Will the official candidate not need Mr Jackson's active support o get enough black voters to the polls next November? To get that support will he not need to do some kind of deal, in terms either of position or of influence, with Mr Jackson?

Yet if too obvious a deal is done, many white voters will be appalled. So after the nomination is won, the handling of Mr Jackson will present a deliberate test of judgment for the victorious candidate

How Mr Jackson decides to play his hand then may be critical. There is always the remote possibility that, having tested the excitement of the campaign trail, he might run in November as a third party candidate. If he did so, he would make a Republican victory virtually certain,

But if he were able to bring out the black vote in large numbers he might be able to turn the election for the Democrats. The Republicans are well aware of this. They do not by any means regard the cmergence of Mr Jackson as an unmixed blessing. One of the vulnerable points of the Republicans as a party, and especially of this Administration, is their lack of appeal for blacks. Republican strategists are hoping therefore that Mr Jackson will not arouse black political consciousness too much. He is the anguided missile of the coming campaign: nobody can be sure on whom he will explode.

San Salvador A visit to El Salvador by Mr. Richard Stone, President Reagan's special Central American envoy, has served only to highlight the breakdown of peace efforts here at a time when the rebels are taking the initiative in the country's four-

The Reagan Administration says that power-sharing before elections would set the dangerous international precedent of allowing the guerrillas "to shoot their way into power".

Observers here believe that another obstacle to negotiations is the success of a guerrilla offensive that began on September 3. Military sources say there have been nearly a thousand troop casualties, dead or wounded; guerrillas have taken and then abondoned more than 60 towns and captured enough weapons from the Army to suggest that they may not need to be supplied from Nicaragua.

Television Fictional terms

Book Four (Channel 4) yesterday took as its theme "novels and nuclear war"; how, it was asked, could fiction "come to terms" with so amorphous a subject? In fact it need not "come to" terms at all, since it always has the opportunity of making its own. When novelists decide to address themselves to the apocalypse, however, it can often be an easy option - the contemporary equivalent of Gothic horror which accommodates the most predictable or

One important distinction was not drawn in the programme. There is no reason why novelists should not create an imaginatively convincing account of nuclear warfare, if that is what they wish to do, but this does not mean that their opinions about the subject (and, by extension, about nuclear disarmament) are more significant or interesting than those of anyone else. Perhaps rather less so, since many writers seem to lack political intelligence of even the most basic kind.

The South Bank Show (LWT) offered a less turgid subject in Jack Lemmon. With his crumpled face, and eyes like two smoke-filled rooms he has a nervousness which has been transformed into exuberance: it often seems that comedians are funny precisely because they have retained a number of childlike defences. But Lemmon also has a naturally sardonic manner, which he has used to great effect in his film roles: he resembles an indiamb ber ball which has at last decided to bounce back.

He is an actor rather than a comedian, of course, although it was hard to believe him when he said that "I can't just stand up and be funny, like a comic". Anyone who has seen him trip over his heels in Some Like It Hot knows that he has a natural gift for tripping all over the place. The combination of instinct and undeviating professionalism is a potent one: he may not be the most exciting man in the world, but he has made himself into one of the

In the tribal homelands they serve a ceremonial and social purpose, so to watch them purely as theatre would give an uneasily false impression. Also, since they can go on for as long as a formight, you are inevitably going to see only snippets in this kind of presen-

The whole programme, in fact, with five pieces from Arnhem Land and one from the Central Desert, could theoretically have been over within a few minutes, since individual dance sections are very short. But the custom is for the group to repeat them, with variations, until satisfied that they got them right.

One consequence of this is that, however carefully one may have studied the admirably informative booklet about Aus d'Automne (who are also presenting exhibitions, concerts of modern music and a week of films), it is difficult to know exactly what is happening much of the time. You recognize a flock of birds in a sudden sortie by the women, you identify a warrior struck down by avengers, the thunder-god, a kanga-roo; but not all the human or animal characters, nor the context.

style is personal, cogent and gripping. In Paris I saw his Love Songs, danced to recordings by Dionne Warwick and Aretha Franklin.

The title of the ballet is electrifying. Unless I misread it, the work is about the exploitation of women, not so much by men as by their own feelings, and each of the short episodes makes a different single, incisive point. demands dancing of viof vivid individuality, and demonstrates that the dancers are capable of something quite different from the collective, almost imper-sonal style they happily adopt when Kylian's ballets require. The combination of Kylian and Forsythe in one repertory could be a potent one, making an already good company even better.

Netherlands Dance Theatre and the Aborigines are already poles apart, but to see either of them on the same day as a matinee of the Paris Opera Bailet's Coppelia could bring a severe case of culture shock. Yet lands Dance Theatre was in this Coppeliar in one sense Paris at the same time as the relates closely to the aborigine dances: both use highly stylized techniques for lively expression; both present traditional works, carefully handed down by personal instruction from one handed down by generation to another, and still maintaining their original fresh-

(PUBLISHING) Beyond the pale?

What have Mrs Rita Childers (widow of the former Irish president Erskine Childers, whose father wrote The Riddle of the Sands), Lord Henry Mount Charles (rock music activist and sometime Faber & Faber editor) and Robert Kee (former publisher, television person - as opposed to personality - and historian) in common? They have just been appointed judges of the Book Marketing Council's latest promotion, being run in conunction with the Irish Books Marketing Group. Their re-sponsibility is to discover 12 great living authors, either born in the Emerald Isle (the Republic is not exclusively specified) or who have lived there for 20 years or more. This is a follow-up to the BMC's "Best Novels of Our Time", launched at the weekend.

Predictably, the choice of judges - themselves chosen by Irish booksellers - is causing controversy in the Republic. Presumably, whoever the judges were, their list must include books by Samuel Beckett, Sean O'Faolain, Mary Lavin, Brian Moore, Edna O'Brien, William Trevor, John McGahern and Seamus Heaney, all of whom are published by British houses. No doubt this is why British publishers are to be briefed in ondon, Irish publishers in Dublin.

It will be instructive to learn how many of the top of the Irish have indigenous Irish publishers. I would hazard more than two or three.
Journalists are being flown to Dublin (courtesy of Bord Failte) for the launch of the promotion next May. No mention of the 12 great authors, most of whom are likely to reside beyond the pale.

It is reassuring, in a way, to know that language - the actual words, or some of them - still counts with publishers. Thomas Nelson Inc. American publishers of Bibles, acquired some months ago the long-established U.S. house of Dodd, Mead, hardly known for issuing pornography, The decree went out from Dodd, Mead's new hosses that no books containing four-letter words should be published by them, or anything sacrilegious. As a result, two books have been purged from the forthcoming list. Which is more high-principled, Thomas Nelson for their act of editorial independence (or censorship) or those who protest at censorship week, are increasingly publishing paperback editions of their titles subsequent to bringing them out between boards. In Nicholas Kenyon reverse, starting in January, Pan list - are going to be publishing hardbacks, mainly of titles they will simultaneously bring out in paperback.

This makes a great deal of literary, publishing and economic sense, and not only because it should lead to the books being reviewed along with other new hardbacks. After - or before - all, the text of a paperback ("complete and unabridged", as Penguin boas-ted) is identical to the text of a hardback. Those who buy books still assume, to too great an extent, that paperbacks are reprints, whereas increasingly they are not, and hardbacks are originals, whereas increasingly they are unlikely to be. It can make more financial sense to publish a book first in paper-back (albeit printing more at a lower price) and only issuing a hardback later if, mainly, the libraries are likely to welcom,

The new Pan initiative will mean that authors will have the same editor for hardback and paperback editions, and the they should receive a furnoyalty on the retail price of hardback and paperback, no having to share the latte royalty with a different, originating hard-cover imprint. The first titles include The Book of the City of Ladies by Christine de Pizan and Planiverse: Computer Contact with a Two-Dimensional World by A. K. Dewdney. Follow those.

I wrote recently that Macmillan (and no doubt other publishers) have been warning authors that the occasion may arise when it will be necessary for them to decide between selling a title to a book club, without receiving a royalty, or losing the chance of book club exposure with its accompanying advertising.

This is because, not least, the cost of book production does not diminish whereas the clubs are insisting that their members will not pay more than a certain price for books: less, sometimes, than the price of the paperback. As a result, a book club requests that an originating publisher delivers, say, 8,000 copies at £1.44 each, royalty inclusive, to its warehouse, and the club's price will be marked up considerably to accommodate the cost of promotion.

The publishers will try to fob their authors off with 10 per-cent of the proceeds (14p perbook in the example given), claiming that their costs plus overheads make it impossible for them to pay more. Some publishers' overheads are, of course, inappropriately high; and book clubs, who need the product, should be made to pay

Partenope Sadler's Wells

I knew it was a mistake: to prepare myself for the second of the Handel Opera Society's offerings I listened again to some of the complete recording of Partenope directed by Sigiswald Kuijken. As Stanley Sadie remarks in his admirably encyclopaedic contribution to the new Opera on Record 2 (Hutchinson, £15), this is "the most satisfying and stylistically the most accomplished" of all Handel opera recordings (which means that it is one of the few that is at all satisfying or accomplished), and too often during Saturday night's performance I found myself imagining the records instead of hearing the Handel Opera Society.

Which is not to imply that the performance was bad. Indeed Charles Farncombe set lively speeds and made his orchestra articulate with that bouncy staccato which has such an invigorating effect on Handel's lively music. In the more intensely lyrical numbers one longed for a lighter touch: behind the exquiste third act aria of Arsace (Paul Esswood) the strings should have sounded glassy, not mushy. Rosmira's Act II siciliano could and dramatically. The resonance of this Nicklaus comes, too, from the performance of Sally Burgess, new to the role, yet sure, stylish and with the edge of her voice fusing nicely the solicitous and the cynical. The role's central interest is also, alas, exaggerated by the weakness of much of what is going on round about.

Colin Graham's production brings out powerfully the grotesquerie, the distorting extravagances of the work, but, with its heavy sets and lumber-ing staging, it is not one to find an enchantment for the mind or eye equal to that provided by Offenbach for the ear. This time round, even the notes seem to glint less brightly: Michael Schonwandt, from the Royal Danish Opera, making his company debut, approaches the score in a workmanlike, curiously faceless manner, while John Treleaven, the new Hoffmann, is similarly stolid, reliable, yet slackly characte-

There has been a degree of compromise in the casting of Hoffmann's four loves in this production's history. Unlike Geoffrey Chard who, once again, metamorphoses himself brilliantly from Lindorr to Coppelius to Miracle to Dapertutto, we now have Marilyn Hill Smith as Stella, Lois McDonall as Giulietta as well as mining Olympia, and Patricia O'Neil taking over as Antonia.

Antonia's central act, though shrilly sung and acted, remains the best. This production is happiest when observing the foibles of humanity and here is Richard Angas as a strong, distictively voiced Crespel and Edward Byles's ever entertaining Franz. Offenbach's own muse sleeps for a while at the Coliseum.

Topokana Martyrs' Day

It is an average day in the famine relief station. The local East African troops have just cidnapped a delivery driver and beaten him up. Julius, the station dogsbody, is rehearsing for a church pageant, clad in wings and brandishing his spear. We, the audience, are cast as warriors, sitting in blankers filched from our starving children, and meditating a raid on the food store. Meanwhile the women of the village are besieging the station shricking

Jonathan Falla has worked in East African famine relief, and wily second-in-command, and Julius, the docile young warrior.

All these people have their own desires. Ramilies wants to wangle an international staff job; the doctor wants to escape this corrupt zone into a "front-line famine". But, if there is one thing Mr Falla is saying, it is that there is one that these people are impotent, and their desires irrelevant, in the post-colonial chaos of inter-tribal butchery, expropriation and impending civil war.

There is, therefore, less a developing plot than a suc-cession of violent surprises, throwing characters off-course in collisions of terror and broad farce – as where an outbreak of gunfire prompts Ramilies and the doctor into an act of passion while sheltering under a table; or when Ramilies storms into the station in a murderous bid for power and collapses in enraged ignorance when he cannot operate the radio.

Out of context, that sounds like old-fashioned paternalism. The play itself, which simply hurls immediate events at you, takes no such line. Nor could it, when equipped with African performances as impressive as those of Gordon Case and Jabu Mbalo. A sense of total authenticity runs throughout Simon Stokes's production. Experience may have driven the whites half-barmy; but there is no questioning the truthfulness of Caroi Leader as the pillpopping doctor, or David Threlfall's marvellous Apoo,

BMW HAVE JUST RE-WRITTEN THEM ALL.

Above, the conventional wisdom of the car industry. A set of rules that can be summed up in one word: compromise.

Below, a car that owes little to convention and nothing to compromise: the revolutionary BMW 525e.

The 525e is a paradox on wheels. An automatic, executive saloon that gives you, on the one hand, exhilarating BMW acceleration, and on the other, fuel consumption figures that read like misprints.

.J. Craddock

(47.9mpg at a constant 56mph for example; a figure even diesels would be jealous of.)

This gain in both performance and efficiency has been achieved with the help of a BMW innovation called the eta engine.

The eta runs much more slowly than normal engines, which is how it stretches fuel.

But it produces its maximum power much earlier, at engine speeds where most driving is done.

Which is why it responds so eagerly. In the 525e the eta engine is teamed up with another BMW innovation — a four speed automatic gearbox that actually uses less fuel than a five speed manual.

It's a combination that finally lays to rest those time-honoured motoring "rules."

For example, it's no longer true that in order to shrink fuel consumption you have to shrink the engine.

The eta is a smooth running, 27 litre, six cylinder engine. Yet it uses less fuel than some engines of just 1.6 litres and four cylinders.

It's no longer true that an economic, low-revving engine leaves you short on power. At just 4,250rpm the eta generates a full-blooded 125bhp.

And it's certainly not true that aerodynamics is the biggest factor in saving fuel. In fact, wind resistance accounts for only 12% of a car's energy loss.

What does count is the engine. Which is why the 525e uses less fuel than the 2.2 litre automatic billed as the most aerodynamic production car in the world.

The 525e is also faster from 0-60 mph. Which demonstrates the most important breakthrough of all: that fuel economy and driving pleasure need not be mutually exclusive.

That a BMW designed for ultimate efficiency can still be the ultimate driving machine.

who helped to bring to life the imprecedented Roots series and it was he who envisioned the possibility of bringing the reality of nuclear war to the TV screen.

The idea came to him about the time of the 1980 presidential election. He had noticed how effective The China Syndrome had been in deepening concern about the nuclear power is trying to get his wife Eve and their issue - and the film made money. He wondered whether it would be possible to make a movie that would make viewers think about the even more missiles to land any minute. He knew it would be moved me. My son Brian, who is 13, hard to portray the blast accurately on the screen, and harder to get the network's support.

But Stoddard and Stu Samuels, an ABC vice-president who backed the idea, put out the word that they had some development money for a script. "What we were looking for was a story that avoided a polemic of any kind," Samuels recalls. "We wanted to stay away from Washington and the Kremlin. The story was not supposed to reach any conclusion except one: that nuclear war is horrible." Stoddard added: "We wanted just the images, no

They will see subject it has to be absolutely Lewrence, Kansas, change from a whole movement." whole movement"

I keep asking myself: is this really happening?

The Day After is more powerful - and controversial – than earlier films because it concentrates on the consequences rather than the causes of the war. Its main characters are not generals; they are doctors, housewives, students, children. The man who wrote it is Ed Hume. A lean, handsome man in his forties, Hume paid his dues in Hollywood for more Olympics. He described himself as wary of causes and uninterested in the

"They had no story in mind. They just wanted me to come up with what I thought was a good way of showing Brandon Stoddard is a veteran what would happen to ordinary ratings-grabber, but he is also the man Americans after a nuclear war. When I was writing it, I was determined not to be preachy or political, but just to tell a simple story about people.

Researching the story, Hume learned more about nuclear war then he ever thought he would. And it changed him. The first time it hit him was when he saw rough cuts of the film. In one scene, Jim Dahlberg, a Kansas farmer, children into the cellar. They have seen scores of Minuteman missiles leave their silos and expect the Soviet simply cannot cope. She numbs herself to the possibility of catastrophe, runs upstairs and begins making beds. He chases after her, and carries her screaming into the cellar.

When I saw that scene," Hume says, "a chill went up my spine. Even though I'd written the scene, it really has seen the film and is still trying to cope with it. Like all of us, he's trying to deal with the possibility that it might actually happen."

As a Hollywood veteran, Hume knows that many scripts are never produced, and many that are produced are never broadcast. He expected The Day After to be one of the casualties. He is amazed that it has survived. "Throughout the whole project, I keep asking myself: 'Is this really happen-director, Nicholas Meyer, whose last film was Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. "When I first saw the script for The Day After, I knew why several other directors had turned it down," Meyer recalls. "After reading the darnn thing, I asked myself: 'What possible reason would the network have for doing this? I could think of only one: they re scared.

"I had to do it. It was the only moral thing to do. There was no way i could keep signing petitions and not make

Meyer immersed himself in the story before starting to shoot. "I would come home after a hard day's work and I'd be nauseous. What I was learning was making me sick."

Ironically, when the Eureau of Standards & Practices, television's "censors", saw the film it objected most strongly not to the scenes of atomization or annihilation, but to a scene about sex. It involves Dahlberg's daughter, Denise, who wants to make love with the young man whom she is to marry in a few days. As the scene was originally written, Denise goes to her drawer to get her diaphragm and finds it missing. When she realizes her jealous younger sister Jolene has hidden it, she begins chasing her. In the ensuing scene, she tosses it like a frisbee across the room.

"They said the scene implied that the network supports birth control", Meyer recalls. "I told them, no, that's not the point. The point is later, when she is dying, she wishes she had had a child before it was too late. So the censor says: 'Why can't they just sleep together?" I can't believe it. I ask him: You mean you'd rather appear to be in favour of premarital sex?

The sex scene remains in the film (although the diaphragm itself is never visible) but other scenes were cut out altogether. One was a powerful scene in which a child screamed. A child psychologist, retained as a consultant, said it would upset children.

Stu Samuels took over, but when the best film possible." Meyer saw the result, he says he "had a ABC executives confided to the fit". And when he learned that the date Wall Street Journal that sponsorship of broadcast had been postponed, he was even more outraged.

would say about how the war started. Somehow, in the editing overseen by Stu Samuels, the Soviets came to appear totally responsible for the outbreak of war. No one accuses Samuels of doing this on purpose. But it added to the grumblings of Meyer and led to concern that the film was being turned into Cold War propaganda. As soon as those involved in cutting the film realized what had happened, the problem was quickly corrected.

The film's ultimate fate was decided last spring, when Stoddard went to his boss. Tony Thomopoulos, president of ABC Entertainment, and after a screening explained that it would be hard to make the broadcast date of May 22. The film was too long, the suffering too protracted, some scenes were unnecessary; there was not enough time to promote it properly. Stoddard asked for more time - and, inevitably, more money.

Thomopoulos wanted it for May. By the winter of 1982, Meyer's job But he knew what Paul Newman said was over. In television, unlike feature was true: a film on an important films, it is common practice for the subject had to be "absolutely impec-director to leave and the final cutting cable". He told Stoddard: "Do whatto be done by someone at the network. ever you have to do. Go out and make

According to one of those present at the first screening of the film, Brandon Stoddard, a veteran network executive who has brought more than 200 movies to television, was moved to tears. "After the lights came on Stoddard was crying so hard that somebody had to help him out of the Stoddard says: "I've found that working on this film has been a catharsis. Fear of the nuclear threat is the kind of fear that almost immobilizes you. This film helps you go through the fear. It gets you out of your immobility. You are now free to act."

One of his first comments after the creening was that the film must run with or without commercials". He knew that it would not be an easy sell. During the summer the industry joke was that the only interest they could find was from the canned foods and bottled water companies. They finally found some sponsors, but in all likelihood will run commercials only before the blast sequence. After that point in the film, commercial interruptions would be unseemly.

The loss may be offset by foreign distribution sales, however. As of two months before the broadcast, more than two dozen countries had purchased a licence to show the film.

Many more will no doubt do so as the publicity about the film increases. ABC may not make a fortune on The Day

After, but it will not lose money either.

Acclaim for The Day After will certainly not be universal. In fact, charges are already being levelled at the programme for being "apolitical". People expect the film to take a stand, and to point a finger of blame at a milty party. guilty party.

"It's not a very good film," Josh Baran says bluntly. He is national media coordinator for Target Kansas City, an initiative to organize local events around the broadcast date. Baran believes that "there's not a single line of substance in it. They have depoliticized the subject completely".

If you told this accurately there'd be no story' chairman of the Council for a Livable World, goes even fur-ther. "I think this film will be the biggest boost for the civil defence programme," he said after seeing the film in Boston. "It implies that shelters protect people and that people survive." Other critics point out that the film involves a onemegaton bomb over Kansas City, rather than an all-out 20-megaton

No one is more aware than Meyer that the film makes some "best case" assumptions. "If you told this story accurately," he once said, "there'd be

When confronted by activists' comments about the film's "apolitical" of Meyer maintains that believed that his production would dislodge ideology. "I never thought the film would do anything but reinforce the convictions that people brought to it. The people I'm trying to reach are the ones who haven't made up their minds...the ones who've barely thought about it."

There is no doubt that the film hits hard. At a recent screening at the headquarters of Physicians for Social Responsibility in Cambridge, Massachusetts, staff and colleagues from other peace groups sat frozen in their chairs watching the blast sequence. These are men and women who have read all the literature, heard all the speeches, weighed all the arguments. And they were shocked by what they

Others were moved for different reasons. The New York Post published an editorial under the headline "Why is ABC doing Yuri Andropov's work?", to which the conservative columnist Jeffrey Hart added: "The network has in effect made a $7m gift to the Soviet political enterprise."

Now, with just two weeks to go before the film is aired, further controversy is likely to rise. A source close to the film is about to reveal on television that the network has made another cut. In the original version, the tension in Europe that led to nuclear was was occasioned by the deployment of Pershing 2 missiles. Following rightwing charges that the film plays into Soviet hands, ABC has apparently removed all reference to the Pershings.

The debate has only just begun. It will be fascinating to see what happens the day after The Day After.

What shall I do? Leave hin where he is, lad – they'll come and get him when they need his vote. Yes, it's back to the Commons, back to the House, where some men are men and some are a mouse, with star parts waiting for people with nous (lyrics by Thatcher, music by Strauss). The part of Cecil Parkinson will be played by Norman Tebbit. Other parts are as follows: one part Grenada bitters, one part wormwood, one part gall. I thought gall was divided into three parts? Think what you like, lad, but I tell you this: the warning lights are going on all over England, and we shall not see traffic doing more than 40 mph again in our lifetime. Curse this fog. captain – I can't see a single thing on the motorway. But wait a moment, what's that over there? Is it one of ours? No – it's German! Say what you like, you can't beat the dependable old Austin Mitchell, as seen on television. Now fades the Robin Day, becoming knight, and leaves a sudden darkness on the screen, so I must go down to Channel Four and see the old movies. The never seen, Moutning Becomes Electra. Death in the Afternoon and All about Eve, and now it's close-down again. Lighting-up time is at 4.48 and Pve run out of cigarettes. Most of the fields in England have now given up smoking and stubble lies dark and heavy across the landscape, a five o'clock shadow, a carbon copy of the real thing. O to be browning abroad, now that autumn's here! Cynthia and I have decided not to go skiing this year, owing to the recession, so we're taking one of those bargain breaks, in a motel near Swindon. resignm breaks, in a more hear swindon.

Yes. Quite unspoilt. They have a fancy dress ball in Ye Olde Tudor Disquo on Saturdays. I'm going as a politician and Cynthia's going as my secretary. Wonderful fun. Then we put out the Do Not Disturb sign and see if we can recapture that old black massic it's cort me in its spell that old black massic it's cort me in its spell that old black magic, it's got me in its spell, that old black magic, right here in the motel. If you were the only buoy in the world and I was the only gull. I wouldn't come and perch on you. But I must go down to the see again (as the Bishop said to the actress) and do a lightning tour of the clergy - 30 Revs per minute! April in parish, summer is called but autumn is chosen, if autumn leaves can winter be far behind? Yes, the old cycle of the seasons, now with a flat tyre and the front light gone, but what the hell, Sturmey-Archer, what the hell, once a lady always a lady. Personally, I can't see what all the fuss is about; once you've seen one dead tree, you've seen 'em all. Autumn has branches everywhere, stiff and stark against the sky, red clouds at evening, shepherd's pic. Sarge, we brought this bloke in for being alone and palely loitering. He's got this banner with a strange device, or what we call an offensive weapon. Well, throw the book at him, then - personally, I'd suggest the Oxford Book of Autumn Verse. Under the spreading chestnut tree, the village drunkard heaves. The chestnut tree is stark and bare, but the drunkard is covered in leaves. News at Ten, Autumn. Now back to the studio. Over and out.

sidewavs look at the British way of life

For a decade to have survivors it also needs casualties, or else the accolade is meaningless. To put it more crudely, you don't get Mick Jaggers without Brian Joneses, David Frosts without

I have heard it argued that the 1960s, which threw up such a profusion of both categories, actually mistimed their own entry; that the decade should properly have dawned with the accession of White Hot Wilson and not with the remnant of an old Tory dispensation. The argument may have a certain tiny currency insofar as the Sixties, viewed from across this huge and sudden gap of time, now seem as much a state of mind as a span of years. True, the US Sixties came in on cue with Kennedy, but then look what happened to them. And to Kennedy. Besides, it is an argument that came out of the 1970s, a mirthless and hungover epoch if ever there was one.

Because the nostalgia industry - with J.F.K. in the forefront this week - appears to be chasing its own tail with ever more vigour, one of the main survivors of the Sixties is the decade itself. For all its excess and narcissism, it was so full of liberty and expansion that the mere whiff of it has a poignant appeal. But the people who fashioned the age; what has become of them?

Let us first dispense with the prime ministers. The Two Harolds, and the peer who came between them; they can all be said to be survivors of the Sixties, even though Macmillan and Douglas-Home owed their preeminence to an earlier time. Broadcasters still beat a passage to their doors in the hope of some utterance that will put our present difficulties in a true perspective. Indeed Wilson, always a bit of a ham, now revels more than ever in the showbiz end of politics, doing Churchill imitations for the benefit of David Jacobs and the Any Questions?

David Jacobs - there's another. Whatever

didn't happen to him? Surely he was the fellow who used to reach under his Juke Box Jury desk to activate the "hit" bell or the "miss" buzzer while the mystery guest sat behind the curtain to hear his single being rubbished. Now your deejay is chairing establishment panels with such politesse that you would never believe he could have had anything to do with that horrid old pop business.

The survivor is not to be confused with the endurer. A character like Jacobs belongs to the former group simply because he has, quite literally, outlived the period that engendered his first great popularity. The endurer on the other hand is the one who carries on plying his trade in the same way that he always did, without ever falling from public favour. If you accept this differentiation you would place the following in the endurer class: André Previn (he kept on conducting), Joan Sutherland (she kept on singing), Snowd n (he kept on snapping), Albert Finney (he kept on acting), Harold Pinter (he kept on writing), Rudolph Nureyev (he kept on dancing). The charitable would also include Geoff Boycott on the grounds that he kept on playing. These were only Sixties characters in the sense that this was when they made it. There was no intrinsic quality in them to make their success unthinkable in another decade.

What about John Osborne, a 1950s figure in his first incarnation but one whose angry young manhood carried on into the Sixties? (Remember Inadmissible Evidence, 1965, A Patriot For Me, 1965, and A Bond Honoured, 1966). On recent evidence, the young man's anger, flung in the face of the establishment, has given way to a middle-aged man's resentment, flung in the face of the establishment's domestic counterpart, his

And The Beatles, were they survivors or endurers? Both perhaps. The music has certainly lived on, as EMI and the playwright Willy Russell (John, Paul, George, Ringo and Bert) have found to their continuing enrichment. It is interesting to consider what may or may not have become of the Fab Four had it not been for the sure hand of producer George Martin (a survivor) and manager Brian Epstein (a casualty). George Harrison might have been just another lead guitarist in some short lived R and B band; Ringo Starr an office clown with a drum ... for singers and tailors, rich men and poor, footballers and furniture makers

Rita Tushingham which seemed to be promoted, only to be drooped prematurely. In 1965 she was joint winner of the Variety Club best actress award for The Girl With Green Eves. Tushingham went on working through the 1970s, but somehow films like Pot Luck, 1977, and Incredible Mrs Chadwick, 1979, don't have quite the same ring of success as The Knack and Dr Zhivago. She used to resent being likened to another partial casualty, Princess Margaret. In 1980, leaving for Canada she said: "It's so hard to find work in England".

FOOTBALL CRAZY

Jimmy Greaves In soccer terms, "Greavesy" was the ultimate goal-scoring machine of the Sixties. But the pressures were intense (early death of first-born child, unhappy time with Milan, thwarted pursuit of success with Spurs, omission from Ramsey's World Cup winners), and the drinking shortly to become even more so. Hopeless alcoholic for much of the 1970s, but now a key striker in the Survivors' Squad. A TV sports front man as sparkling in the close-range camera shot as he was in the six yards box. Messages here for Best and others.

YESTERDAY

John Profumo One of the Sixties' most resounding casualties. Even if the new morality could have forgiven a politician's sexual dalli-ance, it could hardly overlook a war minister's affair with a girl who was also consorting with Russian diplomat. Besides which, the man hed to the House about the nature of the haison, and had to go. Why we take undergraduates so seriously. Quite simply, we need the best people available to help run today's Army. And we feel that someone who's spending three years working for a degree is likely to be a very good candidate. (Half of our young Officers are now graduates.)

As a jumor Officer, you'll command up to 30 men, and be responsible for them 24 hours a day. We'll also expect you to make sure that they're fit and fully trained. You'll have to learn to handle complex and technologically sophisticated weapons and equipment.

And if you were posted halfway round the world to find yourself ordered, on arrival, to organise a 3 day exercise for 30 men, you'd have to cope. With everything from planning the exercise to ensuring that the men have enough to eat.

No wonder that a commission in the Army is seen as the best management training you can have.

In your first or second year? If you can apply this early, we can offer you something more than a job when you graduate. To repay your enthusiasm and commitment, we could sponsor you until you finish your studies. First, the Regular Commissions Board will put you through three days of extremely tough tests and interviews, to discover whether you're really Officer

Then, if you've applied for a Bursary of £900 a year we'll only ask you to join us for 3 years' post graduate service.

If you were interested in a University Cadetship, though, you could be commissioned on probation as an Officer and earn at least £4.562 a year, while you're still studying. We won't expect you to march to lectures with your boots glearning, but you'll have to attend a short course at Sandhurst during your long vacation. And serve for at least 5 years, after leaving University.

In your final year? As a graduate joining the Army, you'll immediately feel the benefit.

We'll give you three years' backdated seniority, so you'll start at a higher rank than usual, with a salary to match. Since vacancies are up this year by nearly 20%, you should apply right now

After you've graduated. If you're successful at the Regular Commissions Board, you'll spend seven of the hardest months of your life at Sandhurst, learning to be an Officer.

Then you'll start work with us as a Lieutenant and, as a reflection of the responsibility you'll face, we'll pay you £8,314 a year. How to apply.

Visit your Careers Service Office, and pick up an Introduction Form. Through this, we'll arrange for one of our Liaison Officers to see you at your University or Polytechnic. Unlike most graduate recruiters, we'll take you seriously enough to guarantee

Mick Jagger, who has just carried on belting out rock 'n' roll with the same apparent indifference to his audience. There is no desire left for innovation. That all happened 20 years ago when he and Keith Richards, and Eric Clapton and Alexis Korner and dozens of others restyled the 12-bar rawness of Chuck Berry's music for British consumption. Wilson's former Secretary of State for Social Services and holder of three major offices in his Sixties' government, is now into her fourth year as a Euro MP. As for Healey (middle name Winston, remember), Defence Secretary for the last six years of the Sixties, what a resurgence he has had. Once again it is Sir Geoffrey Howe, hardly a Sixties man, who is on the receiving end of that bruising cynicism, just as he was during his days as Shadow Chancellor.

I scrutinize my watch: 11.25 am precisely. I make my way cautiously along Dale Street past a political demo and The Ace Place, a suspicious-looking fancy dress and costume hire shop into a darkened hallway. I find myself in a joint which would be more like home to Miss Marple than Shoestring or Jim Rockford. Here is a decayed centility where plants grow against hothouse windows, a quaintly notched umbella-stand in the corner awaits a rainy day.

Having joined her father's business aged 25 in 1946, my hostess is indeed old enough to have been tutored at Miss Marple's knee. But although she is sometimes nicknamed as such, unlike the venerable spinster ("whitehaired, with a soft pink and white wrinkled face. dressed in rather dowdy black") Mrs Zena Scott-Archer is a picture of chic: smart skirt and blouse topped by lavishly piled hair, sprinkled with tasteful rings and necklaces. I am in the presence of an ex-chairman of the World Associ-

Mrs Scott-Archer's delivery is well in keeping with her woman-of-the-world image. I hear all about a garden fence dispute, where a Mr. and a Mr B are locked in heated conflict over the appearance of Mr A junior's ball in Mr B's territory.

Then there is the time when Mrs

Scott-Archer has to obtain evidence from a prostitute who in the meantime has undergone a sex change. On another occasion our intrepid heroine leads a childsnatching expedition.

So what does the work involve? Professionals like Mrs Scott-Archer on the whole serve two purposes: they can assist the legal system, and they can pander to people's fantasies. In the first category, they act for a client, who is often a solicitor in, for example, seeking evidence, tracing missing persons.

The second type of client is the crank or passionate obsessive. One man rang up recently to confide "I know I'm being followed", and to prove the point took a tortuous route to London from North Wales

At the recent autumn forum of the Association of Private Investigators, one of the male representatives told her: always send a woman out if it's going to be tricky. You don't get any bull from a woman."

Some days later I am allowed a much longer stint as private detective's mate, being sent out with one of the staff of Wendy Madagan of the much larger firm, B E Madagan and Co. There is no mystique in this efficiently-run organization. Here the "tracing" of missing persons involves no application of what Hercule Poirot was wont to call "grey matter". Instead they let their fingers do the walking

Beware the classroom sneaks

by Caroline Cox and John Marks

The power of entrenched bureaucracies to ignore or to silence those who challenge their policies is most marked in totalitarian societies. Yet as Sir John Hoskyns has recently warned, democracies are similarly threatened when bureaucracy attempts to suppress criticism of inadequate but longcherished policies, particularly when it abandons its scruples. A striking recent example is the use of "leaks" from the Department of Education and Science (DES) to discredit research by the National Council for Educational Standards (NCES).

The report, Standards in English Schools. had posed a serious challenge to the major thrust of education policy of the past 20 years - the move towards a universal system of comprehensive schools.

There followed a series of "leaks". reinforced by widespread and sustained press coverage, damaging both the research and the researchers. More than 30 press reports appeared in the space of a month.

Most were allegations based on the 'leaks" that the research was "flawed" or 'discredited". They mentioned the contents of an appraisal of the research made by officials within the DES. Yet the researchers were never allowed to see the "leaked" report, and so were unable to defend themselves.

Why did the NCES's original research give such offence that attempts were made to discredit it by such underhand means? It analysed the 1981 examination results for 350,000 pupils from more than 2,000 schools. The results showed that children's chances of getting good results - so vital to their future careers - vary dramatically from school to school and even between schools of the same type in different areas. Big differences were found between different Local Education Authorities (LEAs) and between different types of school.

Comprehensive schools had worse examination results than grammar and secondary modern schools taken together. Secondary modern schools did particularly well. In the vital core subject of English they outperformed all the schools in nearly a third of the 57 LEAs studied, even though secondary modern schools normally have relatively few pupils who would be expected to pass Olevel examinations. Important differences were also found between departments within

These findings increase the accountability of teachers by giving independent and external evidence about teaching and learning. They help parents to make better decisions when choosing schools for their children. They help the public find betterinformed answers to questions about changes in schools - either locally in response to the fall in birth rate, or nationally in deciding overall education policies. Without adequate information both choice and policy are blind.

It can only have been the vital importance of the research findings - and the likelihood of similar studies each year to monitor trends - which led to such violations of the canons of scholarship, the obligations of office and accepted standards of behaviour.

What did the "leaks" point to as the main cause of criticism? They claimed that the sample was unrepresentative. This is not true. The DES confused the year in which the pupils entered school for the year in which they sat their examinations - a fundamental error which casts doubt on the whole DES appraisal.

It was also claimed that other measures of social class could be used. Quite right. We used the only relevant recent data published by the DES at the time the research was done. We are willing to incorporate other social class data into future analyses as soon as the DES makes this information available.

Lastly, it was contended that our analyses, which give unadjusted examination results for schools of different types in different areas, are less useful than analyses involving correlation and multiple regression. This reflects a fundamental difference of approach. Regression analyses inevitably deal with adjusted data rather than actual examination results, and are notoriously difficult to set up and to interpret unambiguously. To pretend otherwise is to mislead and to mystify the non-specialist. We believe that the main emphasis should be on the actual results achieved by pupils, since it is by these real results that pupils will be judged by employers or colleagues.

Whatever the reason why "leaks" were resorted to, the campaign has been effective. The NCES Examination Results Project is about to close. Funds are not forthcoming from the DES, and because of the denial of any effective right of reply doubts have understandably been raised in the minds of potential independent donors.

The silencing of dissident voices has an ultimate significance which far exceeds the destruction of a unique data base, the discrediting of the findings and the denial of their importance for the future of education. It is proof that a campaign of leaks and smears can be more effective than open debate, and that anonymous bureaucrats who resort to such means can effectively silence those who challenge them. Without honest debate, democracy will not flourish.

That such a campaign should have emanated from a great department of state like the DES is a matter of public interest and concern. In 1976 Viscount Eccles, a former Secretary of State for Education, told the House of Lords: "You cannot trust that great department any longer It is a very sad thing for an ex-minister to say." It seems that this is still true.

When I can into him the other day. Jeff Rooker was carrying, not to say. weighed down by, a massive bundle of documents. The Oil Taxation Bill", he told me. The Labour MP for Perry Barr, Birmingham, had been assembling material relating to this new legislation, about which be will have to speak in the House of Commons on Wednesday. Until last week, Jeff Rooker was an Opposition front bench spokesman on social security. Now he has been appointed to the team shadowing Treasury ministers. The Oil Tax-ation Bill is his first assignment.

The Treasury minister responsible for this legislation has no doubt also been spending some time in preparation for Wednesday's debate. His private office will have collated background material for him. They will also have asked the appropriate group of civil servants to draft him a speech. If he wishes he can simply get up in the Commons and read out the speech, having previously done little more than look it through and study additional documentation in case an MP intervenes in his speech and asks a question. He can even get away with declining to give way to his interupter, or with giving way and, if he does not know the answer to the question, promising to write to the member concerned with the requested information.

On Wednesday morning, if he has any doubts about any of the issues covered by the Bill, he can call into his large and well-equipped office, two or three minutes' walk away from the Palace of Westminster. Treasury officials who are some of the country's greatest experts on the subject. Immediately prior to the debate, in his conveniently situated office in the House of Commons building, he can ask for last-minute briefing. Right up to the moment he gets up to speak, he can send his parliamentary private secretary to the civil servants' box, on the floor of the chamber itself, and they will pass him any further information he needs.

All Jeff Rooker has is himself. He has to discover what relevant material to read. He has to mug it up, either at home, during a weekend when he will have multifarious constituency duties, or back in his poky little office in the Commons. He has to draft his own speech. He has to master the subject sufficiently to be able to cope with interventions from any other MPs, including the minister himself.

Jeff Rooker will do all this, and do it extraordinarily well, since he is more than a match for any member of the Government and a whole collection of civil servants into the bargain. However, the imbalance is massive between the minister's lavish support and the do-it-yourself efforts of the Opposition spokes.

It may be thought that this is quite fair. After all, the minister is required to administer, to govern the country. All the Opposition representative has to do is to make a speech. Yet what that Opposition spokesman says is part of governing the country too. Together with the speeches of other MPs in the debate, his speech is an essential part of the democratic process. of holding the government accountable for its actions, of making sure that ministers do not use their huge majority to get away with things too easily.

That is why the machinery of a shadow administration has grown up in recent years. It has not always been so. Although, in the first postwar Parliament, Churchill had a shadow cabinet, it was only nebu-lously organized, with front-benchers assigned to deal with legislation in a casual manner. These days the growth and complexity of government have obliged the principal opposition party to match the government almost person for

With oil taxation Bills of fiendish difficulty, with rate support grant legislation that is equally complicated, not to mention the mindboggling intricacies of such matters as social security benefits, defence policy and information technology, specialization is inevitable and essential. However, the sheer toil in mastering such subjects can be enormous.

All members of Parliament, back bench as well as front beach, are inadequately serviced. The sums of money provided to enable them to do their constituency work and brief themselves for their parliamentary duties are disgracefully puny. The minuscule staffs who work long hours for them - perhaps a secretary and a shared research worker - are insufficiently recompensed. Following an initiative from the Labour government in 1974, what is known as the Short Money (named after the then Leader of the House, Edward Short) is now allocated to help opposition parties. Though better than nothing, it too comes nowhere near providing sufficient funds for any of these parties to function efficiently. Covernment today is too big for an Opposition forced to operate on a shoe-string. There will, fortunately, always be people like Jeff Rooker prepared to do the detailed work that their assignments entail. However, in failing to provide him and his counterparts with the necessary resources, the nation is treating the democratic process in a stingy and niggardly manner.

How will the Grenada setback affect the Cubans?

Quiet Castro considers what to do now

Havana Yesterday Cuba celebrated El Domingo Rojo - Red Sunday - with the annual undertaking of a morning's extra work by more than 2,000,000 people, one fifth of the population. Bank clerks put in shifts from 8am to 2pm; dockers in Havana spent the morning unloading Russian freighters; workers in the sugar refineries repaired machin-ery in time for the coming harvest, Red Sunday is an extension of the system which finds every Cuban working two Saturdays a month and many of them volunteering for extra duties in the evenings and at weekends. This year it has gained extra impetus from the events of the past formight, which have confirmed the majority of Cubans in their carefully nourished belief that only an energetic devotion to patriotic duties will keep the Yankee menace at bay.

"Let us transform into productivity the sadness and indignation inspired by the imperialist aggression," they were urged by the CTC, their workers' federation. Not all the responses to the Grenada crisis are so straightfor-wardly resolved. Many people have spent a great deal of time during the past two weeks attempting to decipher the message in the lines round Fidel Castro's eyes,

His sobriety was certainly appropriate to the arrival of the wounded, but something more extrovert might have been expected on the other occasions from the man who made the revolution and who regularly held crowds a million strong in the palm of his hand for five or six hours while he recited statistics and taught them slogans.

It has not been a good time for him. While there are certainly moral gains to be enjoyed from the US action in Grenada, an enormous investment has been wiped away. Castro has lost whatever Grenada cost in terms of material and manpower, he has lost a good friend in Maurice Bishop, and he has lost a useful second power base at the other end of the Caribbean, a place at which "friends" from other Caribbean and Latin American countries could meet and a useful channel for funds and other aid to sympathetic movements.

On top of that he has seen his fertile ground; he has had to make a public admission that, should the US choose to walk into Nicaragua. he would be unable to lift a finger to help the Sandinista government, and his Prensa Latina correspondent has been kicked out of Jamaica.

now building up to the imminent twenty-fifth anniversary of its revolution with the slogan: "25 years of revolution, 25 years of victory". One effect of the Grenada debacle will assuredly be a degree of introspection, expressed - like Red Sunday - in terms of an enhanced commitment to the revolutionary ideals. Cubans will be implored to undertake more voluntary work, to be more vigilant against counterrevolutionary subversion in their homes and places of work, to join the territorial militia in greater numbers and to see themselves even more clearly as the inhabitants of an island fortress under permanent

As an internal strategy, this stands every chance of succeeding. Although, after 25 years, true revolutionary ardour has abated in many

Cuban breasts, what one western diplomat here called "the patriotic nerve" is still strong enough to act as a surrogate.

Externally, Castro can choose from among several responses. If he is looking for revenge, he may increase his support for the Salvadorean guerrillas or look for other movements to assist in the area, such as Colombia's M-19 (unlikely. since that country's president was such a helpful go-between in the repatriation of prisoners from Grenada) or the Bolivian leftists who have already, it is believed, received some training in Cuba. He might seek to exploit the new splits between various Caricom countries, or he might apply to his Russian sponsors for action to make life difficult for the US in some more distant trouble spot.

The problem with such escalating responses – and here is where Castro's underplaying manner may be significant – is that Cuba wants to be seen as a responsible, mature member of the Latin American community: a difficult feat in the light of its continuing commitment to the spread of revolutionary socialism throughout the Third World. If, however, Castro is to into the deals which would bring him hard currency and put the Cuban economy on a sounder basis. he must appear sensible and statesmanlike. With the US indefinitely closed off from economic partnership. Cuba is looking for friends in the West and is particularly hopeful of establishing trading links with the socialist government in various parts of Europe. Spain has already responded; Mitterrand's France has yet to match up to Castro's initially nigh expectations. A better publi image would help - and the general European outcry against President Reagan's invasion will have done no harm at all - but it is hard to see this material necessity taking precedence over Castro's overwhelming desire to free the rest of the Americas from US economic and political domina-

> The horse in question is a member of a parish "nuclear defence committee" in a small village somewhere in the British Isles. The village lies, for civil defence purposes, within the purview of a good solid Conservative authority which takes such things seriously: it has appointed a vigorous ex-army type to co-ordinate plans, and this individual has gone about the county identifying in each parish good men and true who can be trusted to use their initiative in making sure that somebody, at least,

is ready for the holocaust. An appropriate chairman in this particular parish having been thus identified, he set about hand-picking other members of the committee. It was not done by the normal democratic methods, of course, but by extremely confidential cloak-anddagger approaches - hoarse whispers at the far end of the bar in the village pub, a few muttered words in the spinney at dawn, and so on.

The committee, once convened, set about devising its emergency plans. First, a fortunately capacious air-raid shelter built for the Second World War and now derelict, was to be enlarged and strengthened, as far as possible in secret (though how that was to be done in a small village I am not clear). Second, it was to be well-stocked with food; since many of the committe members were farmers that was not very difficult.

Third (and here a war-film over), the committee realized it would have to defend the village all safely bedded down in the renovated bunker - against desper-Sale Room Correspondent Every member of the committee was Increasingly defence experts are to be armed with a shotgun. And though some members of the committee, rural folk though they were, were unequipped in this respect, others providentially had more than one gun and so could share them about.

> Discussion then proceeded along the following lines: the greates number of reckless marauders would be likely to come from the nearest big city, which would either receive a direct hit or be thrown rapidly into chaos by the disruption of services and supplies. The city lay the other side of a big river across which by great good fortune there was only one bridge for miles. The nuclear defence committee hit on the brilliant idea that the defence force in the bunker would have an easier time of it if the bridge itself were defended. (Why the idea of dynamiting the bridge was not considered I do not know, but I must be faithful to the story I was told and it was not included in that.) What was decided was that as soon as the alert sounded a contingent should be dispatched to the bridge with their shotguns and > instructions to let nobody across. Here they hit a snag. A few members of the committee in fact worked in the city and pointed out that - if everything happened very quickly as it was likely to in the case of a nuclear attack - they would themselves be trying to get back across the bridge. What means of identification should they use to make sure they didn't get shot by mistake? The committee are still busy devising a suitable logo for the car windscreen

Now I do assure readers of The Times that I have no reason at all to disbelieve this story. But is it an isolated instance of grown-up schoolboys playing at war-games, or is it happening in every village in the land? Does it mean that when we innocent city-dwellers, rambling across the fields and dreaming of the tranquil rural life, encounter barbed wire and a "Keep Out" notice, we can assume the worst? Underneath that charming village church is there a crypt stuffed with grain and grenades, butter and guns - to be used against us when the time

Well somehow I don't think it has come to that. But, all the same, the thought that as I close my eyes tonight the same English moon and stars will shine over unknown numbers of nuclear defence committee fantasists weaving dreams in which (accompanied no doubt by Jack Hawkins in a balaclava helmet and John Mills holding the darkened torch), they mine the local footpaths scriptwriter seems to have taken as the four-minute warning sounds. makes me even more uneasy than the imminent arrival of the cruise missile.

Ward is thus the apex of the new management structure to whom all the old staff must now report. whatever their high-sounding titles. Graham Llewellyn has retired from his role as chief executive and returned to selling jewelry, which is what he did before.

Ward has only been in the post for few weeks, so neither he nor Taubman can yet sensibly be blamed for what is happening at Sotheby's. Indeed, their first move has been to give all the staff a substantial pay rise, which should have cheered them up.

Curiously, during the last few months, while Taubman's takeover has been a near or total certainty, some aggressive decisions have been made over the demotion or removal of expert staff. It is hard not to believe that jockeying for position in the new Taubman Sotheby's has not had something to do with it.

Such actions, however, may have been shortsighted. Both Taubman and Ward have made it clear that they regard the expertise of Sotheby's staff as the single, crucial asset that makes the purchase of the company worthwile.

They have also revealed the outline of their future strategy for Sotheby's. Around the existing company they intend to build a much larger service company, playing a significant role in the fields of insurance, finance and property. The idea is to use the firm's fund of knowledge of art and its value in a variety of new ways, and to capitalize on existing contracts among the rich and famous This is a new kind of creature altogether. In the past, art auctioncering firms have either been run as partnerships, or at least behaved as if they were. Both Sotheby's and Christie's only went public in the 1970s and have continued to think and act in the old mould. Phillips remains a private company. The Taubman Sotheby's intends to treat auctioneering as one arm of a big service corporation.

It is not only Sotheby's staff who are anxious to know whether and how this will work. Christies, which says that it intends to carry on auctioneering in its traditional way. is watching with anxious eyes. The art-dealing community is also seriously concerned. Christie's chief worry is that Taubman will use profits generated in other arms of the business to subsidize the auctioneering side, thus cutting commission rates to non-viable levels. The dealers are anxious that the Taubman Sotheby's will be offering such a package of services to private collectors that they will take to buying exclusively at auction and cut out the middle man. That, indeed, would be no more than a continuation of an existing trend.

For the already battered staff at Sotheby's, the chief concern is that they will be allowed to continue making the best job they can of art auctioneering and not be pressed in contrary directions by the demands of new branches of the business. Most of them believe that there will be big changes in the company over the next year or so. They just hope that Taubman gets it right and peace is allowed to break out again.

This week a further meeting in Athens of the Community's foreign and finance ministers will try to pave the way for a solution at the EEC's summit there in December. So far as Britain is concerned, the special problem of our own inequitable contribution to the Com-munity's revenue is now subsumed in the larger crisis. The one cannot be solved without a solution to the other, and this provides the principal hope of settling the grievance which has soured Britain's relationships with its partners and kept alive the stultifying unpopularity of the EEC with British public opinion

The Community is in financial crisis mainly because the is even more important now. The cost of subsidizing Mediterranean products, particularly benefiting Italy and Greece, has risen from 6 per cent of the agricultural budget to 25 per cent. As surpluses grow and market prices fall, the difficulty of unloading the excess becomes greater; if it tries to do so, the EEC lowers prices against itself.

Agricultural spending is now rising by 30 to 40 per cent ted revenue will not suffice. The only way in which it could be raised is by permitting an increase of that part of it (60 per cent of total resources) which is contributed by member states on a calculation based on their VAT revenues. By digging her heels in, Mrs Thatcher has achieved substantial rebates in Britain's budget contributions in recent years and nearly £450m in 1983. But she has always insisted that what she wants is a permanent solution and that is now also the Germans' position since the higher our own rebates, the more their own heavy burden as the other paymaster to the Community increases. plunged into sudden crisis next year through finding itself short of funds because the I per cent VAT revenue ceiling had been reached. Either event would bring matters to a head and since it is in Britain's interest that they should be brought to a head quickly neither need be a cause of great distress.

In the end, the Government's strength lies in the simple fact that every other member state knows that there is no chance of the British Parliament's being asked to agree to an increase in the VAT element of "own resources" to the new ceiling of 1.4 per cent suggested by the Commission, except as part of a wider deal which puts Britain's own contributions on a fairer basis. Though there are large differences about how this now a general acceptance, including, significantly, by the French, that whatever is done to problems must be by deductions from contributions and not

This is itself a sign of significant change of attitude within virtually all the member ment for the future financial arrangements of the Community. It may not be achieved at the Athens summit; a financial crisis may be needed to precipitate it. But a settlement is in everyone's interest. For lack of it, the accession of Spain and Portugal to the Community has been held up and there is no serious possibility of tackling the growing dissatisfaction with the way in which the Community is working industrially and financially. So long as bickering over the nature of the annual budget continues, the growing usefulness of the Community as a concerted Euro-voice in international affairs is put at risk.

Perhaps most important of all, the continuing failure to find a dilemma exacerbates the unpopularity of the Community in this country and encourages unconstructive and unrealistic fantasies of withdrawal which only lead to misunderstanding of Britain's position. That is why Yet it is just as likely, if not firmness by Mrs Thatcher in pursuit of a lasting solution which finally settles Britain's can do the Community as well as her own country. sovereignty" in any full meaning of that expression. Not only is that far beyond the range of Unionist consent, but it could not conceivably operate between states, the Republic of Ireland and the United Kingdom, which have such very different conceptions of their respective places in the world. The notion of joint sovereignty could be given no more than a strictly limited and functional value.

Even then, and supposing Dublin was still interested in the idea under those conditions, Unionists would need a lot of persuading that the scheme could deliver the other half of what it is supposed to deliver, namely satisfaction of the nationalist element in Northern Ireland sufficient to reconcile it to the institutions and authority of the state and sufficient to cause it to shut out revolutionary violence.

This is looking much farther down the road than either principal will be inclined to look today. Dr FitzGerald will argue that the political and economic health of Northern Ireland can only be restored by giving the Republic more standing in the matter. He will be reminded that the standing the Republic can be given in the matter is circumscribed by the requirement of the consent of the Unionist majority for any change in their constitutional position, a requirement he acknowledges without apparent reservation. If a passage can be found between those mutually restricting premises the prime ministers will no doubt be happy to have it explored.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SAS to the rescue of 'mini-states'?

From Sir Philip Goodhart, MP for Beckenham (Conservative)

Sir, In the course of the last twenty years, successive Governments in this country, both Labour and Conservative, have given full independence to nearly twenty ministates - some with a population of less than 100,000 - who cannot make adequate provision for their own defence.

Three of these mini-states, Grenada, the Seychelles and Zanzibar, have already been hi-jacked by small bands of armed men, not much larger than the gang that carried out the great train robbery. In a fourth state, the Gambia, a semi-mutiny/semi-coup by the para-military police two and a half years ago was checked by the fortuitous presence of a couple of SAS soldiers, followed by the massive intervention of the Senegalese army.

After the relief invasion of Grenada, your proposal (November 4) that the West should now "develop a coherent and multilateral approach to further rescues" is certainly right, and the Foreign Secretary's preliminary proposals for such a coherent approach, made in the House of Commons on November 3, were rather more positive than you have yet acknow-ledged.

It seems probable that the heads of governments of our East Caribbean Commonwealth partners will now look to the United States for security guarantees. But our own forces have more experience of limited internal security operations than the Americans have. In particular, the SAS seem well suited for this sort of role. The extra cost to our defence budget should be minimal, for what is needed is a mini-commitment to meet minithreats to mini-states.

Of course there are political risks involved. We do not want to find ourselves committed to the defence of regimes which have become harsh or oppressive, but there could be a de facto understanding that any use of external security forces would be followed in a matter of weeks or months by the holding of free

For many years there has been an agreed policy for dealing with airliners that have been hi-jacked. Now we need an agreed policy for dealing with mini-states that have been hi-jacked. Yours faithfully,

PHILIP GOODHART, House of Commons. November 4.

A little inflation

From Mr W. R. Eyres Sir, Gavyn Davies (feature, October 29) is right to question the Chancellor's ultimate aim of price stability, the object all sublime which he will achieve in time.

Sir. Gavyn Davies was wrong before about inflation and he's wrong again now. He is not entitled to assert that the rise in unemployment since 1979

is the "cost" of the fall in inflation since then. Does he seriously believe that if inflation were now running a its 1979 level unemployment would be only 1,500,000? A cumulative inflation rate of 5 per cent a year is not "low". It creates uncertainty, invites damaging political intervention, and seriously distorts company accounts. Nor would the inflation rate be likely to remain steady at that level. Hence the Chancellor of the Exchequer's objective of zero inflation - honest money - is highly desirable. Yours faithfully,

D. R. MYDDELTON, Cranfield School of Management, Cranfield, Bedford. October 29.

Rate for the job

From the Chairman of the Audit Commission for Local Authorities in England and Wales

Sir, Your report, "Rich rewards for members of the cash curb quango" (November 3), that the Audit Commission is to pay its own staff up to twice the salaries paid in town halls and well above those in the Civil Service makes an attractive headline. It is, however, wrong. The Audit Commission will be

From the Editor of British Farmer landowners took advantage of the and Stockbreeder

Sir, My old friend, Hugh Gardner (November 2), seeks evidence that the 25-year-old criteria by which arbitrators shall determine rent properly payable by tenant farmers have resulted in unfairly high rent levels. I fear retirement from a distinguished career in the Ministry of Agriculture may have left him out of touch with unpleasant realities.

The formation of a separate Tenant Farmers' Association two years ago, with the support of some well known and highly efficient farmers, was a direct result of rents (whether determined by arbitrators or settled in anticipation of such determinations) greater than a reasonably competent tenant could afford, while still leaving him with a fair return for his work, manage-ment and risk capital.

The rent formula which both Mr Gardner and a group of leading estate agents whose letter you published the previous day are defending was fundamentally defective in 1958 and remains so now. It was based on earlier legislation governing rent settlements for commercial premises where a free open market is a reality; if demand strengthens new commercial premises can be built to satisfy it. There was no need to worry about isolating and discounting scarcity value - as Parliament found it necessary to do when legislating in 1965 for the determination of fair rents for residential premises.

Even in 1958 supply and demand could not operate for farm tenancies. New farms were not being created; and a substantial number of existing ones were being amalgamated, with strong Government backing after 1967, into more viable units.

To base rents for sitting tenants on the assumption of a free market which has no substance in reality is bound to produce excessively high

Mr Gardner argues that the introduction of a specific reference to the productive value of the land is unnecessary because it is already subsumed by the duty to take all relevant factors into account. If that is so, and both he and the land agents are contending that arbitrators already do take ample account of the productivity and the potential profitability of the farm, why all the fuss?

If it is not so, are the land agents (as distinct from their own professional body which has supported the new formula) arguing that an arbitrator should ignore the pro-ductive value and base rents more firmly on a fictitious open market? Yours sincerely,

Classroom blind spot

From Mr Harry Hochfelder Sir, I see that it has required a National Institute for Economic and Social Research study ("A German lesson for our schools", The Times, October 31) to find out that our education system is streets behind that of West Germany, a fact which has been evident to any casual observer for several decades. If the net had been cast a little wider the NIESR study could have also established that we lag behind the educational systems of most other advanced industrial countries, particularly Japan.

Over 2m of the adult population of Britain are illiterates. Moreover, we have until now provided vocational training only to a small minority of school leavers. Is it not quite obvious that there is bound to be a causal link between that and our low productivity and lack of competitiveness?

From Mr Malcolm Murchison Sir. I was interested to read the letter from Professor Harding (October 31) about the hydroelectric project

The area was recently designated as a national scenic area, the nearest thing in Scotland to a national park, on account of the remarkable beauty of the mountain scenery. The board has freedom to investigate hydroelectric resources all over the north of Scotland. It knows perfectly well that there are other areas of less scenic value than those round Loch Maree.

Did it investigate the potentiality of such areas for water power before deciding to assess the viability of a hydroelectric scheme at Loch Maree? If it did, we would like to hear details. If it did not, we would like to know why. Yours faithfully,

MALCOLM MURCHISON, 50 Old Elvet, Durham.

Audit Service have recently received of course competing for staff of the offers from the private sector at salaries substantially above those they will be paid from next April. 4. The Controller's compensation, with which your correspondent makes much play, involved a very substantial reduction from previous compensation, as we made clear at the time of his appointment; and from January 1 it will be almost exactly in line with that for civil servants with comparable responsibilities, such as the Comptroller and Auditor General, once allowance is made for the fact that he makes his own pension arrangements.

The drive for improved value for money is very important to everybody. It is important, however, that such a drive is based on a full understanding of all the facts. Yours faithfully,

Home truths on pensions policy

From Mr Stephan Schattmann Sir. As a rule, ministers do not go out of their way to refer to trends in other EEC countries in support of their policies. But the Chancellor of the Exchequer appears to have started a new trend. Recently he referred to the delay of pension increases in Germany (and France too) as examples of retrenchment of social protection expenditure, adding that "here at home, too, hard choices will have to be faced".

Clearly, if a country as well off as Germany, we appear to be told, has to trim pensions Britain cannot run away from reality - to borrow the Prime Minister's phrase. Yet this is what the Chancellor seems to have

The delay in pension increases is not exactly hot news; it was announced a year ago. The increase due on January 1 was postponed for six months and has been paid since July 1. It is in fact the second time a German Government has taken such a step - the Social Democratic Liberal coalition did exactly the same in 1977.

Measured as a percentage of net earnings, the level of pensions is unlikely to have changed this year compared with 1982, when it was over 65 per cent. It would thus not be very much below the all-time peak of just over 66 per cent recorded in 1977. In this country the standard pension represents 22.9 per cent of manual earnings or 16.8 per cent of non-manual earnings. In cash terms and at current exchange rates Britain's standard pension of £32.85 compares with about £105 to £110 in the Federal Republic.

Whereas Mrs Thatcher and her ministers are determined to lower the fiscal burden, German Conservatives are far less dogmatic in this respect. When Chancellor Kohl came to power last year he cut the trade tax but increased VAT by 1 per cent and introduced a 5 per cent levy on higher incomes to stimulate capital formation, repayable after two years.

describes the state of the law concerning the landlord and tenant system as unreasonable: a fair description when one considers that And earlier this year a DM5.5bn package was introduced to substantially reduce the current deficit in the pension account. This had been incurred in 1982 (after surpluses in 1980 and 1981) through a decline in contributions and a deliberate lowering of the contribution scale by 1/2 per cent to offset an increase in unemployment insurance to some extent. More than two-thirds of the package represents more contri-butions and the balance an adjustment in the calculation of the annual

Already, in fact, a consensus is emerging among Nato's military to the effect that several thousand ground-launched cruise missiles (GLCM) will in due course be needed (along with very many Pershings) for various non-nuclear tasks. Indeed, a leading US analyst has spoken of 100,000 cruise missiles of one kind or another eventually being required for one purpose or another.

Needless to say, too, many of the additional weapons will be similar to or even identical with those earmarked for nuclear delivery.

Surely, then, a firm distinction will have to be drawn between the management of those GLCM that have been reserved for nuclear purposes and those which have not Otherwise the prospects both for assured crisis control and for arms reduction dialogues could be seriously vitiated. Yours sincerely.

Church and remarriage

From Mr and Mrs T. A. Davies Sir, Your leader on "Repeatable marriage vows" (October 31) and much of the discussion on this subject seems to us to miss the main point. Marriage, according to the Prayer Book, involves a vow of sharing "until death do us part". This is marriage.

We are unable to see how the same vow can be repeated with a second partner while the first is still alive. Marriages, of course, do break down and a further form of partnership may well merit the blessing of the Church. But since any second ceremony cannot honestly include a second vow of permanence while the first is patently unfulfilled, it would seem illogical to speak of

In his retirement, for years he introduced a most successful weekly programme for the old and sick, called "Silver Lining". Its signature tune was the air from Parry's "Judith", now more familiar as the melody for Whittier's hymn, "Dear Lord

Medical Research in London. the mention of influenza continues to cause shudders among medical scientists, and with good reason. It is a family of viruses which appear to abide by no rules. They change their molecular make-up frequently to overcome the body's defence system. By exchanging genes with other viruses on rare occasions, an influenza virus can create new and lethal hybrids, sweeping through susceptible populations. Indeed, the same virus that is carried harmlessly in the

The truth about Privatising British Telecom.

The privatising of British Telecom has stirred up political controversy. Leaving the political issue aside, there is now an urgent need to clarify the points below in the interests of truth and the customer.

Q. Will rural services be reduced?

A. No. Our policy of service and improvement in rural areas is being, and will continue to be, vigorously pursued. In any case the new Telecommunications Licence to be granted by Parliament will guarantee them.

Q. Will residential phone charges shoot up?

A. No. We shall continue our existing successful policy of price restraint. In addition, the Licence will provide a specific assurance for customers in this respect relating increases in charges to the retail price index.

Q. Will emergency services be cut back?

A. No.We are strongly committed to them.
Their continuance—however unprofitable—is guaranteed by the Licence.

Q. Will telephone kiosks be phased out?

A. No. Their provision is safeguarded even in unprofitable areas, except against strictly defined criteria in the Licence.

This is the first time in British history that the provision of many telecommunications services will be required by law—a far stronger safeguard than has previously existed.

British Telecom is already one of the most technologically advanced telecommunications systems in the world. It has every intention of going on getting better and adapting to compete in the world market-place.

We shall always have the interests of you, our customer, at the forefront of our thinking.

Lucas Industries publishes its results for the year to July 31 this morning with the market looking for pretax profits in the region of £5m, after last year's losses of £20.2m. There is concern, however, that despite the recovery from halfway losses of £5.2m the dividend may not be maintained. Last year the total payout was 8.6p. The fear is that Mr Robert Brown, newly appointed as finance director in March, may feel that further writedowns are necessary on the vehicle equip-ment and industrial side so that the balance sheet is clean for the current year.

The poor demand for cars reflected at the interim stage has been replaced by a more buoyant sales climate in the second half. This should be enough to bring the component business back to profit. Lucas CAV and the diesel fuel businesses are unlikley to have gained at all with sales pitched towards t he depressed commercial vehicle market.

The strongest part of the business is the aerospace division, where the outlook is encouraging and Lucas is beginning to feel some return from its heavy investment in new plant and equipment in civil aircraft industry. Tomorrow, Smiths Indus-tries, which has joined forces with Lucas to develop electronic engine and car systems, also produces full-year results with the market expecting pretax profits of £25m against £25m.5m last time. The group still suffers from the cyclical nature of its automotive distri-been hit by recession. Only the medical division is showing the steady growth which Smiths is trying to achieve from all its operations and now produces about one-recent years.

On Wednesday, the City has the chance to compare the performance of Commercial Union Assurance and General Accident Fire and Life Assur-ance, two of Britain's largest composite insurers, in the wake of the £796m bid for Eagle Star Holdings by BAT Industries. third of group profits. Longer term analysts are predicting an increase in profits away from months stage range from £33m

ECONOMIC VIEW

Prices should hold steady

another week for up-to-date information on government finances. The monthly figures on central government borrow-ing, which were due on Wednesday, have been discontinued. Instead estimates of public sector borrowing (including town halls and state industries) are to be published each month instead of once a quarter, starting on November

But it remains an interesting week for economy watchers. Lucas has important con- Factory-gate prices in October, tracts for programmes like the released today, are expected to show a rise of about 0.5 per cent, leaving the annual rate little changed at around 5.5 per cent, which suggests that manufacturing companies are continuing to absorb steep increases in costs

This bodes well for retail price inflation, published on Friday. Most analysts expect a rise of about 0.5 per cent, leaving the 12-monthly increase to October between 5 and 5.25 per cent, well on target for a rate of under 5.5 per cent by

Tomorrow, the Bank of England releases its provisional estimate for money growth in the October banking month. Despite a slowdown in the amount of funding by the authorities from very high September levels, analysts ex-pect the rise in sterling M3 to be between 0.5 and 1 per cent, keeping money growth well within the 7 to 11 per cent

However, that essential guide to interpretation of the pro-visional money numbers, the London clearing banks' monthly statement, which indi-cates the level of bank econ-London omy, is not out until Friday.

target range,

to £51m, with most analysts pitching for about £43m (£24.3m). The factors to watch are the effects of Hurricane Alicia in the US which cost CU about £8m, and also the possible continuing strengthening of reserves for the US operation which dented the half year results.

General Accident will be more concerned by events at home, particularly on its huge motor insurance account, ahead of the August increase in rates. The market expects nine month profits of £59m against £32.7m at the same stage last year.

Close attention will also be paid to the Candian insurance market, where there is some sign of a return to the ratecutting which had dented profits there in recent years. On Thursday, high technology group Applied Computer Techniques should manage pretax profits of £1.8m at the interim stage against £790,000 losses last time. Sales of the Sirius computer have levelled at about 1,250 a month with encouraging volumes achieved in the dull summer market. This would be enough to achieve a doubling of volume from Sirius compared with the first half of 1982. Andrew Cornelins

Crown Agents sentenced but not yet beheaded

Senior managers of the Crown Agents, the 150 year-old organization which has been threatened by a sudden financial crisis, will today step up the campaign to save the organization with a direct appeal to Sir

Geofficy Howe, the Foreign Secretary.

Mr Peter Graham, the senior Crown
Agent, and Mr Alan Frood, the chief executive, are scheduled to meet the Foreign Secretary. They will outline the survival plan which they claim will allow the Assets to the the Agents to return to financial viability

The plan involves selling the freehold of the organization's grandiose Georgian head office in Millbank, London, cutting back its employees from 1,200 to about 860, and streamlining its diverse activities on a more "Commercial" basis. The organization is also asking the Government to waive interest payments on money lent as starting capital four years ago, when it was reorganized as a semi-autonomous corporation. Sir Geoffrey has already been told by his officials that the alternative to endorsing the survival plan is to wind up the Crown Agents, a course urged on him by some backbench MPs.

This would involve some of the Agents' activities, such as supervision of colonial pensions, being transferred to government, some other activities being privatized and the rest being abandoned.

The Agents' future has been under threat since the Sultan or Brunei abruptly withdrew the lucrative business of managing his £3,500m investment portfolio several months ago. The Agents, leaders aware of criticisms that the organization is anachronistic, have been campaigning vigorously in recent weeks, winning the support of, among others the CBI. A Government decision to endorse survival plan or close the organization is expected within weeks.

Daunting demand for banks' options

The foreign currency options schemes offered by Barclays and Hambros Banks are an attempt to counter American thrust into one of the fastest-growing sectors of corporate finance.

The two banks believe they have winners. Hambros' director of foreign exchange, Mr John Haywood, said that, within five days of telling clients about the scheme at the beginning of last week, "We have had an extraordinarily large number of inquires from corporate customers."

Foreign currency options are now competing with the conventional foreign exchange market, which companies have always used to protect themselves against future exchange rate movements.

Barclays International set up a trial options scheme in January, by filling the gap left by the tender-to-contract insurance offered by the Export Credits Guarantee Department. It deals below ECGD's £5m minimum limit and works in currencies other than American dollars, Deutschemarks and yen for a premium of 0.75 per cent.

A market set up to deal in foreign currency options in Philadelphia last December is said to have run into liquidity problems - and New York banks have stepped in to offer "over the counter" option schemes using their own

Now all active foreign exchange banks in London are considering doing it.

Barclays wants to be seen to be offering something a bit cheaper and more flexible than Philadelphia. It deals in strike prices which move five cents either side of the day's dollar spot rate. Barclays is thinking of probably three cents either side.

The cost of an option at Barclays is about 3 per cent of the contract. It will tailor contracts more to customers' individual needs, with the fee more competitively priced according to the currency chosen and the option period.

Unlike forward markets, which carry the advantage of being much more precise, these bank options do not lock purchasers into a contract. Purchasers have the right not to buy if their own commercial negotiations fall through. Moreover - and this is their greatest appeal - they are not denied windfall profits should currencies move more favourably than expected.

The Dubliners smell gas

Amateur investors on the Dublin stock exchange who have been courting a considerable financial hangover through their enthusiasm for companies who may, or may not, have found oil in the Celtic Sea, are again letting their imagination run riot. They are now backing their belief in major gas discoveries. Atlantic Resources has seen its shares rise from a low of 30 Irish pence in March in Dublin to 950 Irish pence. In London they rose 50p last week to 685p. Arran Energy moved up 5p to 59p and Bula Reserves 2½p to 27p.

The shares are still being bought mainly by small investors. The Irish Government is concerned about the number of second mortgages raised in the Dublin area and Mr John Bruton, the Irish industry and energy minister, is advising caution.

Leading brokers Wood Mackenzie also takes the Bruton line. They point out that it is extremely rare to discover the potential of an oilfield from the results of

A record 162 Putions were submitted to the CBI for debate during the one-and-a-half day Glasgow conference, but the final 16, chosen in secret during the weekend by a special committee chaired by Sir John Hedley Greenborough, a past president of the CBI, was notable for its lack of controversial opinions or demands.

The malaise that threatens growth

The bond markets, the in all these markets. That commodities markets and stock factor is the persistence of the markets of the US are suffering from a malaise. The stock market is unable to make price gains sufficient to lift the big major aggregates above the levels of late April.

By the end of business at the weekend, bond futures were back to the levels of carly September. These levels in turn were way down from the May prices. The commodities markets are very depressed and have lost about half of the gains made, in the futures, between July and September. The gold and silver markets are in a very low state. Precious netals futures have been down

The Dow Jones industrial average on Friday came down very close to the 1,200 mark. A drop through that level would really unnerve the markets. Meanwhile, the dollar has regained much ground lost during last month. By the close on Friday, it was up to DM2.668 and the Yen fell sharply to 236.42 to the dollar.

The US economy is still looking strong - as indicated by the sharp drop in the October unemployment rate to 8.8 per cent from September's 9.3 per cent.

But these special factors do

Federal Reserve's restrictive monetary policy. By the week of October 26, the level of the banks' "adjusted reserves" (as calculated by the Federal Reserve of St Louis) was $54.3bn. That compared with a level of $53.9bn in the week of April 6. In the last seven months, the annual rate of growth of the banks' "adjusted reserves" has been around 2 per cent. By contrast between August, 1982, and March, 1983, these adjusted reserves" rose over 12 per cent a year. Between early June and early November, the level of the "adjusted monetary base" rose only $3bn from $195bn to correspondingly slow. By the money and banks reserves freeze has evidently hit all the financial markets and the commodities markets.

There is no evidence as yet that the Federal Reserve intends to make any change in its policy. That is not likely to come until there is evidence of an actual slowdown in the growth of the US economy. By that time, the accumulated problems of the financial markets and the commodities markets will have laid the foundation for a more severe slowdown in US economic growth than the authorities have bargained for.

JAL EXECUTIVE CLASS

More leg room. More comfort. At no more than the normal economy fare.

From November 14th 1983, Japan Air Lines introduces its new Executive Class on the daily B747 flights on the Polar or Trans-Siberian routes.

For no more than the normal economy fare* the new Executive Class brings a new style of comfort to long-distance travel.

Replacing the present J and C business classes, it surpasses them both for sheer luxury.

There's more leg room with the seat pitch increased from 34 to 37 inches.

There's more shoulder room with only 8-abreast seating.

There's more space to sit back and relax with the recline angle of seats increased to 37.°

And there's a foot rest to complete your comfort.

The cabin service has an extra touch of class, with even more service improvements due by next Spring.

And with all the exclusive Japanese style, it's a Class you'll want to be in more often.

*Subject to results of negotiations with UK authorities.

The longer the flight, the more the details matter.

A SUCCESSFUL HALF-YEAR

The Board of British Airways announce the unaudited results for the six months ended 30 September 1983 as follows:

The figures shown for the periods of six months ended 30 September 1982 and 1983 have been prepared in accordance with the accounting policies used in the production of the accounts of British Airways Board and its subsidiaries for the year ended 31 March 1983 except that the result for the period April to September 1983 takes account of the new accounting standard (SSAP 20) for foreign currency borrowings.

Notes:

1) No provision has been made for UK Corporation Tax on the profits of British Airways Board due to the availability of losses brought forward. The charges for taxation included in the results relate to subsidiaries and overseas.

2) The results shown are before extraordinary items which for the year ended 31 March 1983 was a credit of £26m and for the period April to September 1983 none arises.

The volume of mainline traffic was 4.5% down from that in the half year to 30 September 1982, but improved fare yields and the effect of weaker sterling increased total airline revenue by £111m.

The benefits of lower airline staff costs and fuel prices were more than cancelled out by certain higher costs including larger selling expenses and increases in non-sterling costs of goods and services.

The winter months always produce lower revenues but we are confident of a successful result for the year as a whole.

The inexperience of the young New Zealand forwards showed in the fourth match of their tour at Twickenham on Saturday, yet they won. They dominated completely in the third quarter of the game, as they have so often this year against British sides, and showed themstress and showed mem-selves capable of varying their style at need. Victory by a goal and four penalty goals to five penalties, though hardly handsome, was

If this was their initial plan, then the game could be described as a limited success for London, for they came the nearest of any team so far to matching these All Blacks. Yet they offered no alternative; it was a scrappy, sometimes ill-tempered contest littered with penalties for which the referee, Eric Allen, could hardly be blamed since many of the players were clearly bent on exercising destructive rather than creative talents.

There had to come a time when London expanded their game, certainly in the closing stages when a try would have won it, but still risking the ball beyond stand-off. Perhaps their confidence was dented by the shambles to which their crummage was reduced and the dvantage the All Blacks may have advantage the All stacks may have derived from it. Yet they had an answer at the line-out which they dominated and still the hall never passed down the line once.

What little attempt there was to play tugby came from the New Zealanders, mainly from tapped penalties, their cleanest source of ball. Otherwise their beauty was the little of the proper was the little of the passes their beauty was the little of the little Colclough did say. However, that his side was far better organized as a team for this match than for any Lions match. We all knew exactly what we were setting out to do." A sad postscript indeed to the summer in New Zealand.

European season to a glorious finale at Troia yesterday with a brilliant stroke which sealed his successful defence of the Portuguese Open. The 30-year-old Scot drilled a six iron to within 18 inches at the 190yard seventeenth, which hugs the coastline of the Atlantic ocean, to parry once and for all the courageous thrust of the less experienced Chris Moody. Another birdie at the less and the affible Torrance was home and dry with a final round of 70 for a winning aggragate of 286, two under par.

In the end Torrance had three strokes to spare over Moody, whose 68 was the only individual round throughout the tournament under 70. But the final margin camouflagov. But the final margin carnoullages the intensity of the battle. By his own admission Torrance produced his finest ever season following victory in the scandinavian Open. "I had to do it," said Torrance afterwards. "It's my father's birthday tomorrow and I asked him what he wanted 'line the property of the property he wanted. Just win the Portuguese Open again' was his reply."

By taking 38 to reach the turn Torrance left the door open for several rivals to punish him after dropping strokes at the eighth and ninth. For the second successive week the South African Hugh Baiocchi was in a position to win, but four time in five holes from the ninth he took three putts. LACROSSE

London the better shots

By Peter Tatlow

is national cradling week, which means that up and down the country schoolgid lacrosse players are spending break times running around their school pitches sponsored by friends and relations for the number of lengths completed with the ball in crosse. There is no cause for alarm as cradling is not baby snatching or anything of that nature. It is merely he adroit wrist movements used by lacrosse players to keep the ball in the new at the top of their sticks while running fast. The arms swing in rhythmical movements across the ody and good examples of the art were seen at Reigate Priory on Saturday when London University defeated Reigate 11-4.

The difference between the two sides lay in the university's ability to shoot straight whereas the Reigate players were too harassed for careful

The Blackpool Borough players must have wept in the dressing room at the end of their John Player Trophy first round game with Leeds. They seemed certain to pull off one of the surprises of the round when they led Leeds by 9-6 with, a few seconds to go. But. John Holmes, the experienced Leeds international, weaved his way over for a try. Dick kicked the goal and the whistle blew. The relief of the Leeds players was obvious as they left the field, but it was wretched luck for Borough, who had deserved

The match between Widnes and Bradford Northern was, as expected one of the toughest and most closely contested games of the round. N tries were scored in a roungh, hard tackling battle, and the issue was decided by dropped goals, two to Widnes and one to Northern, for a 2-1 score-line.

There were two major surprises from lowly clubs. Huyton inten-sified the problems of Huddersfield by winning 21-8 at Fartown, and the Huddersfield players and directors were booed from the field. Carlisle, who almost went out of existence neighbours Workington Town at Brunton Park to win a second round game and much needed cash.

Fulham put up a light at Featherstone before going down 1210. but Kent Invicta were outclassed

by their first division opponents St Helens, who won 40-7. Hull joined their neighbours Hull Kingston Rovers in the second round by winning 8-4 in a bruising game at Castleford in which Wileman of Hull and Skerrett of Castleford were sent off.

One of the most entertaining games was at Halifax where McConnell scored three tries and Ball eight goals as Barrow came from behind at half time to win 29-12. Cardiff City returned to form with a vengeance, thrashing Roch-dale Hornets 41-6 at Ninian Park. 9 John Dorahy, Hull Kingston Rovers's Rovers's recent signing from Autralia suffered a serious ankle injury in yesterdays match agains Whitehaven at Craven Park Dorahy was taken to hospital with suspected ruptured ligaments, after six minutes of the match.

Blackpool The crumbling cake under the icing Starkey dominated the final afternoon of the Flat racing season at Doncaster on Saturday. For the third weekend running the big race fell to this prolific winner-producing machine when Starkey drove Asir past Free Press and Sikorsky in the final strides of the William Hill November Handicap. The ante-post gamble on Sikorsky looked sure to be landed when Ernie Johnson asked the 8-1 favourite to go and win his race early in the straight. However, in the last furlong Asir's stamina proved the decisive factor in a dramatic finish.

Patience has been the key to Harwood's remarkable late flurry of success this autumn. He wound up the season with 104 winners to his credit, the only trainer to pass the century in this country - although John Dunlop also reached the magic figure after the success of Barrahead in the Long John Scotch Whisky Stakes if the Arundel stable's big race victories abroad are taken into account

In the Spring most of the 132 horses at Pulborough were found to be suffering from a liver complaint. And Harood's decision to rest those affected until he was satisfied with their condition, resulted in that accelerating graph success which produced his final 54 winners in two months and two days. The governor's patience has been extraordinary." Starkey said yesterday. The horses are so well that it's a pity the season can't go on a bit longer.

Harwood is an astute operator in the game of stallion promotion as well as being an outstanding trainer. This is one particular aspect of the racing scene which has captured the public imagination this year. Stories of men and their money are always interesting. For that reason 1983 will always be remembered for the spectacular duel between Shaikh Mohammed and Vincent O'Brien for the $10.2m yearling colt by Northern Dancer at Keeneland. All records were broken on this side of the Atlantic as well Tattersalls on October 12 when the 1.5m guineas given for the Hello Gorgeous clot by Robert Sangster was but one of three lots submitted that broke through the million guinea barrier for the first time. Earlier in the season the Maktoum tamily of Dubai had landed their biggest strike to date with the victory of Shareef Dancer in the Irish Sweeps Derby. The subsequent $40m syndication of

Champions again: Willie Carson and Dick Hern

Of necessity the high rollers continually hit the headlines. The increasing aggregate and average totals at the main yearling sales seem to reflect the healthy state of the industry, but nothing could be further from the truth. For it is also a matter of record that the 184 yearlings sold for an average of 63,500 guineas at the Highflyer Sale represented only four per cent of the 4,738 foals born in 1982. And of the 635 yearings sold at the Newmarket October and Doncaster sales, a remarkably small proportion could have recouped their cost of production, which is estimated at £7,000, plus the price of an average stallion nomination of

These sobering statistics should certainly add weight and urgency to the pleas of the Thoroughbred Breeders Asociation as they argue with the taxation authorities about their proposed restrictive action against the producers of the asic ammunition for an induscertainly justifies their policy of try which in 1982 provided spending so lavishly and fear-lessly. try which in 1982 provided for the exchequer - of which only £19m was returned to racing.

A total of 233 days' suspension handed-out to 32 different jockeys during the season was another cause for public concern. Perhaps the total ban of 26 days awarded to Willie Carson will become the catalyst that will force the Jockey Club to rethink the problem. As far as the "totting-up" system is concerned, the present policy of treating a jockey like a persistently offending motorist is manifestly unfair. A motor car has all the aids, including a steering wheel, a clutch and brakes. Horses on the 'other hand are far more unpredictable vehicles with their tendency to swerve instanly and violently.

The Stewards of the Jockey Club are thoughtful and caring men. They may now be considering whether each individual case should be treated on its own merits. They may well also be thinking that the sentences have become out of all proportion to the offence.

That Carson, for example

cight days for his inability to prevent Air Distingue from veering to the right at Good. wood was little short of abund. After all it was Shaik! Mohammed's filly that was the initial cause of the trouble, not the jockey. Cases of deliberately dangerous riding are quite continue to be severely punished.

Of far more importance are the alleged cases of jockeys who have been suspected of doing their best not to win. The security services of the Jockey Club face a difficult task as they consider possible action over eveidence which the Director of Public Prosecutions has rejected as being inconclusive. For the sake and the integrity of the sport, the sooner this matter is dealt with one way or another

Now for the accolades. Dick Hern is champion trainer for fifth time. Universally acknowledged as one of the great professionals in the world today, Hern's patient handling of Sun Princess to win three races including the Oaks and the St Leger, and to run such a superb race in defeat against All Along in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe was a example of his artistry.

Like Hern and Harwood John Dunlop also continues to grow in stature. Dunlop's total of prize money won at home and overseas of £870,392 is superior to Hern's similar earnings of £691,677. Our present race system is now producing some of the best horses in the world. The victory Tolomeo in the Budweiser Million and that of Old County in the French St Leger, puts Luca Cumani, with £403,059, at the head of the overseas table at present followed by Ian Bal-dwin, Dunlop and Hern. Of the other top men Henry Cecil, Michael Stoute and Barry Hills all finished in the first half dozen in the list. Geoffrey Wragg also deserves special mention for saddling Tecnoso to win the Derby in his first year after taking over the licence from his father, Harry.

Willie Carson was champion jockey for the fifth time. His timing, tactical sense and strength have never been seen to better advantage as he rode 159 winners. The imcomparable Lester Piggott finished second with 150 successes to his credit, followed by Pat Eddery with 122. Then came Starkey and Steve Cauthen.

Aston Villa, United's guests on Saturday, had not won away anywhere since April, and not at Old Trafford since 1954. Everton, Liverpool's visitors yesterday, last succeeded at Anfield 13 years ago. Since defeat for either of the championship favourites was scarcely a consideration, here within successive cold, but clear afternoons, was supposedly an opportunity to compare their respective merits. There may be little to choose between them overall (their formations and individuals are notably similar), but there was a yawning gap between the two approaches.

United, confident to the point of arrogance after seven consecutive victories, seemed content to wait for something to happen. So complete was their domination that for half an hour Villa needed binoculars to see the Stretford end they were attacking. So incomplete was their penetration that Spink was almost redundant

United needed a chain saw to open Villa's reshaped defence. Instad, they were fitted wih Whiteside, an instrument as sharp as a rusted hammer. After a remarkably unproductive Macari, and only then did they and their supporters show some urgency. The position demanded a change of outlook

The consistency of Liverpool, eight of whose representatives have yet to miss a game this season, is not restricted only to their team sheet. Their performance yesterday, as awesome as it was in midweck in Bilbao, was built around accurate passes and intelligent runs. The game suddenly seems as absurdly simple as it should always be.

Apart from an opening flourish that was to be expected in a local derby aflame wih passion, Everton never looked like containing them. By offer-ing Dalglish a spacious playroom in midfield, and by leaving Lee and Nicol free to roam either flank, they contributed to their inevitable defeat which might have been even hcavier.

Dalglish, a master at work, created all three goals. In the seventeenth minute he released Nicol, whose cross confused both Southall and Ratcliffe. Rush, and antishesis of Whiteside, steered in the loose ball for his thirteenth goal of the relatively young season before Everton's defence could think about recovery.

• Mats Wilander won his semifinal against Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 6-3 yesterday to move into his second consecutive Stockholm Grand Prix final. Wilander served four aces whereas Gerulaitis served frequent double faults and also had trouble with his service returns. • Yannick Noah, the French Open champion, has decided to take a two-month break from competition until the Masters tournament in

New York in January because of an injured knee which has been bothering him for some weeks. CROSS COUNTRY: David Moorcroft, the world 5,000 metres record holder, continued his comeback from illness and injury by winning the Birmingham League first division race at Perry Hall. The Coventry runner is 10 compete in the International Athletics Club cross-country event in December before flying out to New Zealand on December 29 for his annual visit

British girls are no match

Williamsburg, Virginia (Reuter) – Great Britain had no answer to the power of Martina Navratilova and Pam. Shriver as the United States completed their 6-1 victory in the Wightman Cup yesterday.

Miss Shriver won the first 10 ames to crush an injured Sue arker 6-0, 6-1 in 40 minutes to give the United States an unbeatable 4-1 lead in the first match of the day. Miss Navratilova, the world's No player, followed up with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Jo Durie. It was Miss Navratilova's seventy-eighth victory in 79 matches this year.

The two Americans then paired up to overwhelm the makeshift pair of Miss Durie and Annabel Croft 6-2, 6-1. Miss Croft was a late replacement for Anne Hobbs, who had been ill all week with stomach

The Amerians now lead 45-10 in the 60-year-old competition that was suspended in the war years 1940-45. The United States has now won the last five competitions.

The winning team of Mrs Navratilova Miss Shriver, Kathy Rinaldi, Candy Reynolds and Paula Smith split $67,000. The British team of Virginia Wade, Miss Durie, Miss Hobbs, Miss Barker and Miss Croft divided $33,000. The final day's attendance of 5,172, including the Duchess of Gloucester, at the William and Mary Hall at the College of William and Mary, raised the total attendance for the three-day event to 11,843.

In earlier matches Miss Shriver had beaten Miss Durie 6-3, 6-2 to avenge her defeats by Britain's top player, at the French Open in May and at Brighton, two weeks ago. The British team had been confident that their girl would win again, but it was not to be.

Reutemann: difficult decision

Reutemann returning?

prix racing driver, Carlos Reste-mans, of Agentine, is in France for talks with Ligier and may resume his formula one career with the French team, according to the newspaperL'Equipe.

"I want to find out first hand how work on the new car is going." Reutemann said. "A good motor, a good chassis, good tyres, a qualifield engineer and a team of competent mechanics - these are my criteria for deciding whether or not to get back into the formula one circuit," be said "I admit it is a difficult decision."

Reutmann retired from racing after pulling out of the Brazilain Grand Prix, following a collision in March last year. He began in formula one with Brabham in 1972 and later signed with Williams. L'Equipe said John Watson, of Britain, who was dismisses by the McLares team last month, would be the most likely candidate to lead the Ligier team if Reutemann declined the position.

The board are making Somerset immune from their plan for one year, because the West Indian players, Viv Richards and Joel Garner are contracted until the end of the 1986 Glamorgan feel this is unfair.

Warwickshire want a loyalty at Lord's. Five years ago, the TCCB and the association set a cut-off point of November 28, 1978 when counties could field only two overseas players if they were both registered before the 1979 season.

The decline in their number, has not been rapidly enough for the counties, who believe that an unfair water the structure of the treatment brought into the issue. They claim an allegiance to both their long-serving Aivin Kallicharran, the West Indian batsman, and the South African all-rounder, Anton Ferriar. They say that if an overse is "star" has served 12 years or more with a county he should be excluded from the restriction.

ATHLETICS

AAA in hesitant mood

There was a mood of hesitancy about the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association in London on Saturday, writes Pat Butcher.

Athletics, like so many sports nowadays, is at a crossroads. It still pretends to be amateur, and, of course, 99 per cent of its practitioners are amateur. They buy their course it they share transport their own kit, they share transport costs to races; in short they pay to enjoy their sport.

But athletics to the general public is stars like Steve Cram. Steve Ovett. Sebastian Coe and Dave Moorcroft, who attract hundreds of thousands of pounds to the sport in sponsorship and television fees. Accordingly some AAA officials are hard at work selling athletics as entertainment while others are recreation, and go untaxed by a government that has taken £75,000 in the last two years.

Half of last year's £85,000 profit went in corporation tax, and John Martell, the AAA treasurer, said: "Other sports are screaming out at the excessive tax burden. Next week to still most support to the state of the state will meet our accountants to discuss the situation".

However the main body of Saturday's meeting reminded the top table that the AAA is an organisation of men's athletic clubs. in England. The general com-mittee's new registration scheme for individuals does not have the clubs' approval even though it has already attracted 26,000 members including

Benefits of a sandwich course

Less than 10 years ago university Robert Wall describes departments that ran sandwich sponsored degree courses in engineering had great difficulty in attracting students with even moderate qualifications. Becourses on which students are paid cause of the dramatic increase in unemployment, together perhaps with a new understanding of the role good career, it is probably that which goes from A levels to a degree

via sponsorship by large companies such as British Aerospace, Cadbury

Schweppes, Ferranti, Ford, Hewlett

Packard, ICI, Jaguar Cars, Lucas or

Rolls Royce. Such organizations sponsor substantial, numbers of young people for degrees in subjects such as mechanical, electrical, production or aeronautical engineer-ng, business studies and computer science. A sponsored student is treated as an employee and is sent to a university or polytechnic, return-practical experience and job training, with a virtual guarantee of permanent employment at the end of the course. The sponsored student will receive a salary for at least part of each year and the employer may pay, in addition, up to £345 (£845 where science and technology are being studied) before the LEA grant is affected.

It must be emphasized that many companies will sponsor students for normal, full-time degree courses, often with a year in the company first, with students returning during the vacations or perhaps only during the long vacations, but a much larger number of organizations are being prepared to sponsor students only to intergrate sandwich courses in the technological universities or

The technological universities have links with thousands of companies, and even during the current recession are able virtually to guarantee sponsorship for suitable applicants to certain departments.

"Suitable" in this case means having the personal qualities to impress at interview, as well as the academic qualifications that are usually the only real requirement for entry to a degree course. The Faculty of Technology entry in the Brunel prospectus includes the following phrase: "Brunel has close links with engineering industry, and if a firm assesses the engineering potential as good, the admissions tutor will take this into account when assessing the actual A level attainment prior to offering a firm place in the Faculty".

Dr Ian Cole, industrial liaison tutor in Aston's Faculty of Engineering, said in reply to a question about universities are in partnership with industry in the education and training of undergraduates. In of the professional engineer, there are now very many able sixth-formers who are interested in the departments such as mechanical, idea of a degree course which production and electrical engineerincludes employer-based proing we are able to obtain sponsorship for about 50 per cent of students. These men and women will have a good understanding of fessional training. The sandwich course is now perceived to be the safest route to appropriate employindustry by the time they graduate. If there is a guaranteed route to a

It seems that the engineering departments of all the technological universities are able to arrange sponsorship for at least some of their students, but this is much less likely in courses such as business studies or the pure sciences, where the student is much more likely both to be university-based and to be sent for practical experience to a number of different employers.

The recession has hit the polytechnics harder than it has the universities, and most report that the days of the sponsored student are virtually over. Indeed, some polytechnic departments say that the very existence of the sandwich course is threatened because of the reluctance of firms to take students on placement. However, the picture seems to vary from polytechnic to polytechnic, and Pat Ellis, Trent's industrial liaison officer, takes a more optimistic view, saying that placement was "very successful last year" and that he sees no reason why this year should be any worse.

If an applicant is interested in a particular institution because of the availability of a sandwich course, it would be advisable to make careful enquiry as to how real the work placement will be. It is not unknown for students to be transferred to the full-time course, and applicants should investigate what has happened to students in the previous year or two.

There is no doubt that taking a sandwich course is a substantial advantage when it comes to looking for appropriate graduate employ-ment. Many students are offered a job by an organization that has rovided professional training, for having had someone for an interlasting six months or a year means that the employer is able to form a really accurate picture of the applicant. Even if a student is not offered a job in this way, (or does not want the job offered), having some work experience will be an advantage when compared with a similarly qualified full-time student. Indeed, some employers have expressed concern because sandwich course students interview so much better than others, so that they sometimes give a false impression of their real ability. As well as the advantages of job prospects and money (some students have a total income of more than £4,000 a year), it is claimed that sandwich course students are better able to absorb their academic work because they are applying the theory in the workplace. This is one reason given by Peter Steele, group personnel manager for Lansing Bagnall, the Basingstoke-based engineering company, for preferring to train engineers by means of sandwich courses. Similar comments are made by personnel and training staff in many other

Sixth-formers who are interested in the idea of sponsorship should obtain a copy of Sponsorship, a booklet available free of charge from Careers and Occupational Information Centre, Manpower Services Commission, The Pennine Centre, Hawley Street, Sheffield S1 3GA However, not only is obtaining sponsorship very competitive but it is likely to be somewhat easier to obtain through a department than by writing to the firms listed in the booklet. Sponsorship companies also advertise in the national press from time to time.

As there is considerable confusion over the terms used when referring to sandwich courses it will be useful to define the more important of Integrated sandwich course: One in which theoretical academic study and employer-based professiona training are closely related. There ought to be, and usually is, close cooperation between university or polytechnic staff and the training or personnel departments of the companies involved.

Thin sandwich course: One in which periods in employment alternate with periods at university or polytechnic. A common pattern is for alternating periods of six months to be spent in each situation for a total of four years. A salary is paid during the work period in each year, with the normal grant paid for the two terms of academic study. The amount of grant depends on parental income in the usual way.

Thick sandwich course: This term is used for two quite different types of course. The technological univer-sities and the polytechnics normally use it for the 2:1:1 structure, i.e. two years of study, followed by one year in a job and then a final year of study. Other universities use "thick sandwich" when referring to a 1:3:1 structure, i.e. a year in a job, followed by a normal three-year degree and a further one year in employment. The technological universities are: Aston, Bath, Bradford, Brunel, City, Loughborough, Salford, Surrey, University of Wales Institute of Science and Technology.

Perhaps we should end with a word about the main disadvantage which is the much greater intensity of work, particularly on a thin sandwich as opposed to the full-time degree. Someone who wishes to lead the life of the traditional student would be well advised to stick to the traditional style of course.

Educational

Bring your experience to IBM-it could be an education

- Pioneer new approaches with our customers and field staff.
- Develop management education courses, working with a team of dedicated professionals.
- Teach these and other courses at our Education Centre in North West London and at other locations in the UK and occasion-

These are just some of the things you can expect when you add your high level of experience and communication skills to our Systems Management Education Department-a training centre which equips senior staff with the knowledge to plan, manage and control information Systems. But to join us in the following areas, we're not just looking for teachers. We need professional men and women who want to make the very best of their experience in planning and developing business systems through an educational role.

Project Management

The demand here is for a deep, practical knowledge of the tools and techniques of project management. You are therefore likely to be a manager or senior professional in a data processing environment - preferably with experience of planning information systems and, ideally, of teaching.

Data Analysis

The ideal candidate is likely to be a senior systems analyst, a designer or a data base administrator with a sound working knowledge of data modelling and systems design in a business field—using leading edge techniques. Experience in other areas of Application Development or in teaching would be an added advantage.

So, if you hold a degree or have an equivalent level of education, and you're looking for a new set of challenges—with a salary and benefits package to match your experience, please phone 01-995 1441 ext. 4078 for an application form, or write to Sally-Anne Judge, Recruitment Officer, IBM United Kingdom Limited, 389 Chiswick High Road, London W4 4AL. Appointments

SALES EXECUTIVES Required for London, the West, Midlands & Scotland

Tecno based in Milan is an international organisation today respected by Architects and Designers throughout the world, with 24 subsidiaries in 12 different countries.

Tecno is not just a line of products, but an extended variety of design commitments. The successful candidates will join an efficient and hard-working team and be expected to become fully involved in pursuing the aims of the company.

Ideally aged 25-35, a cultural background to understand modern design is essential as are self-discipline and a sense of responsibility. Knowledge of the world of architects, designers and specifiers as well as a knowledge of the Italian language are useful but not essential prerequisites.

The positions are offered to candidates resident in the London area, Cardiff, Bristol, Manchester, the Midlands, Glasgow or Edinburgh.

The ability to communicate and to negotiate at all levels is essential together with the drive and ambition to help and maintain a successful future for both the company and themselves.

The highly competitive remuneration package offered will include all the usual benefits associated with a position of this importance together with a negotiable

nces of the Civil War

 If all goes the way the Chinese government have planned it, in two generations time it China will be a country in which brother, sister and cousin will not exist. This state of affairs will be the logical conclusion to the 'one family, one child' policy instituted in 1980, nine years after the 'one family, two children' edict was announced. Horizon's CHINA'S CHILD (BBC2 9,25pm) is an absorbing examination of how the latest policy is working in the Chinese town of Changzhou, a place the size of Liverpool, near Shanghai. In charge of seeing that no family contravenes the rules is a formidable dragon, Madam Chen, a middle-aged virago who has spies in the factory and residential neighbourhoods who report back to her if they suspect any woman of being 'over-broody', suffering morning sickness or putting on too much weight. If a mother is caught pregnant for the second time then, consecutive nights, the documentary concentrates on two large housing estates in Edinburgh – Pitton and Muirhouse – and the work of a local self-help group. SHADA - an organization made up of parents, ex-addicts, community workers and users of heroin who want to kick the habit. Two of the latter category are featured tonight – Gary, a 19-year old who turned to petty crime to subsidise his addiction, and Pam, a pathetic, pretty, 16-year old who has been hooked on heroin for about a year. Theirs are disturbing tales but, unfortunately, not exceptional ones for the area, where, it is estimated, 1 in 12 of the younger population is an addict. Made by the same team that was responsible for the excellent Living in Styal, this is an equally penetrating look at a disturbing nether-world.

Mothers who have been persuaded of the lolly of their desire for a second child talk of their feelings but, strangely, no husbands are interviewed. Despite this oversight the documentary remains a fascinating study of the power of Big Brother.

Azerbaijan. Both are tough political operators, however. and have the edge over Mr Gorbachov, who at 52 is held to be too young this time round. Sources said there were some signs of internal paralysis.

Sessions of the Central Committee and Supreme Soviet were expected later this month but have not been announced. Crucial local party elections now under way are being used as a mini-purge, intended to culminate in a pro-Andropov Central Committee.

Despite the political uncertainty caused by President Andropov's absence, his policy on the critical arms control is being maintained by other Politburo members.

Mr Romanov, in his keynote speech on Saturday, made several ringing references to Mr Andropov's opposition to the imminent deployment of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, to ripples of applause. There was a slight, almost undetectable stir in the hall as the Politburo walked from a side door on to himself with Mr Romanov. Behind him Mr Chernenko, looking as fit and confident as he did this time last year, chatted amiably to Mr Grishin. Mr Basnett said last night: "The general thrust of our meeting was that we are emerging from the depression after the election and anxious to help the party and face the problems we have with this Government and its legislation. Allthe unions were enthusuastic and mean to do this."

What he did not say was that they mean to do it on their own terms. Union leaders see the new drive to "turn Labour's face out to the voters" as a welcome move away from the internal policy harangue that has characterized the party in

Mr Chapple will lead the attack on Labour's policies at the Electrical, Electronics, Telecommunications and Plumbing Union conference at Blackpool today when he will argue against unilateral nuclear disarmament and withdrawal from the EEC. He said that the Labour leadership during the general election had made only "a few percentage points difference to the result" and added that "2 good leader with the wrong policies would be just as vulnerable and unsuccessful as bad leader with good policies."

Unless the policies were changed "the Labour Party will have difficulty getting back into power and the unions need to take some account of that", he Mr Chappie, who will be addressing his last conference as general secretary of the union before he retires at the end of the year, and his successor, Mr Eric Hammond, both said they had "no qualms" about the decision to boycott the Labour leadership election last month because they had no confidence in the election

Letter from Grenada

Back to bananas after bullets and drama

A banana boat has just arrived signalling a return to normal commerce. Islanders are patching bullet holes and painting out revolutionary slogans. It cannot be longbefore calypso mongers sing about Mr Reagan's telegenic little war and how the Americans overthrew bloodstained tyrants and sent the Cubans and Russians packing. It is a story of high drama that Evelyn Waugh would have relished. Our own Queen plays a part, and there are also ruthless revolutionaries, the gung-ho American admiral who ran the war and made John Wayne look like a dove, the Cuban ambassador's green-eyed wife who gave press conferences at her front gate under the barrel of an American machine gun, and a cast of thousands of soldiers, diplomats and journalists, including the wine correspondent of the New York Times, who paused to report impending war before heading for France to inspect the vineyards. It seems rather odd today that all this should bave happened in this small benana and numeg island whose little capital looks like Tobermory. The power in the land, de facto, is the American Army. The 3,000 remaining troops patrol the roads and dash acout in Jeeps with guns and crates of Coca Cola There have been bad moments for those who use local taxis: Americans sometimes forget that Grenadians drive on the

Meanwhile, the Queen is Queen of Grenada and her man, Sir Paul Scoon, the Governor-General, is legal head of government and something of a fig leaf for the Americans. It is lucky for Grenada that its link with the Crown provided a hand hold amid disorder.
The genial Sir Paul, or Sir

Scoon, as Americans some-times call him, is now forming an interim government of decent non-political people, a sort of government by Rotary Club.

American soldiers see rather foggy about the constitutional position, and are not sure how the Limeys' Queen fits into all this. The British, it must be said,

have not scored many points in Grenada. Many people have strong British councy-tions and almost every taxi driver seems to have an aunt in Puttery. But we neglected the island. We gave independence but very little aid and turned out back on political and regional problems. Our office in St

George's is a disgrace, a hole-in-the wall in a side street. On the day of the invasion some people thought the British had come to save them from the terrifying regime of Mr Bernard Coard and General Hudson Austin (now pondering their fate on board an American warship). On top of that disappointment there was Mrs Thatcher's coelness towards the operation. Events in Grenada followed the script of the Americans' Ocean Venture 81 exercise two years ago, when Maurice Bishop wrote to other heads of government: "We are coninvaded by the Reagan Ad-

He saw the airport as a threatening base. Maurice Bishop's Government regard-ed it as a symbol of self-re-liance and a prerequisite for a strong tourist trade and improved commerce. It is funded mainly by EEC and Arab money. The Americans found it easy enough to take the island, but the idea that they can simply walk in, impose a political system to their liking and walk out again is quettionable. A year's breathing space before elections are held may be too short, Many Grenadians want the Ameri cans to stay

With the arrival of the Americans many Grenadians feel they have been given a second chance. But the eu-phoria will fade and world attention will turn to other events. But the island's difficulties are going to be immense, and it may not be as easy for the Americans to leave as they thought.

In most parts of Britain, autumn leaves are now at their most spectacular. Beeches are ablaze with orange and yellow; there are yellow takes of leaves under the black
